GARDEN, FARM, BEES, ETC.
ST. BRIGID'S WINDFLOWERS.
Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Garden Correspondent says:—
After struggling this mild winter through to give us of their gorgeous flowers, and the bed has seldom been without some visible, we now anticipate a right royal display in the near future. These are varieties of the Levantine Anemone coronaria, which was noticed in our gardens so far back as 1596, and taken in hand by the late Mrs. Lawrenson in her old garden of St. Brigid's Oratory, Kildare, afterwards at Sutton House, on the Hill of Howth, subsequently occupied by her, from whence the much-improved progeny became so famous, and entailed so much correspondence that she adopted the nom-de-plume St. Brigid, under which her triumph took the popular name. Her method was to mark only the finest flowers by tying a bit of worsted to the stem or seed saving, and, by constant selection over some years, gave results so conspicuous.

IRISHMAN'S DIARY.

Ling for Lent : Washington's Bi-Centenary : An Island of Pumice. Civil Service Correspondence : A Kerry Earthquake.

Civil Service Correspondence.

Visiting a Government office a few days ago, writes a correspondent, I noticed that small green paper flags marked "Urgent" in large capitals were attached to a number of files. Actually, I suppose that these files required immediate treatment. I understand that the officials to whom they are passed for attention must not park them at the bottom of their correspondence trays until they feel the spirit move them to write an appropriate reply. Complaints from important people, such as political personages, are sometimes marked "Critically Urgent." These files must be dealt with at express speed.

Incidentally, my own experience of Government departments tells me that they never become excited about epistolary matters. Correspondence couched in vituperative English (or Irish) merely produces a mild smile, and the violent individual in the country who imagines that he made the officials sit up and take notice might have saved himself the trouble of writing. Civil servants are trained to be imperturbable. Nowadays they merely send a buff-coloured acknowledgment in "100 per cent." Gaelic, which, I am told, means in English: "I am after receiving your letter, and it will receive attention." However, it is sometimes necessary to send a reminder, which will evoke another stereotyped acknowledgment before a "foolproof" reply is eventually received.

Lenten Fare.

During the past few weeks I have noticed large bales of ling and thousands of boxes of red herrings coming from the docks to the wholesale houses in the city. These consignments of fish come from the east coast of Scotland and England, and they are intended for consumption in country districts where it is virtually impossible to obtain fresh fish. In fact, in many places along the coast the only fish to be obtained during Lent are the dry-salted varieties. Ling is very popular with farming folk. It is kept hanging in the kitchen, and I understand that it improves with age. It must be soaked in water the night before it is required, and then boiled until it becomes tender. They tell me that, when served with white sauce and plenty of farm butter, it is most appetising.

Washington's Bi-Centenary.

Mr. F. A. Sterling, the American Minister to the Free State, will give a dinner at the American Legation in the Phœnix Park on Monday, February 22nd—the anniversary of the birth of George Washington. I am informed that he has invited the Governor-General, other prominent officials of the Free State Government, American diplomatic and consular officers, and private American and Irish citizens.

George Washington was born on February 22nd, 1732, so that this year's anniversary will be the bicentenary of his birth. In the United States a general programme for a nation-wide celebration has been arranged, under the direction of a George Washington Bicentennial Commission created for the purpose. The ceremonies on February 22nd, of course, will be especially elaborate and impressive, but they mark only the beginning of a period of celebration which will last over nine months, ending on "Thanksgiving Day," which comes on the last Thursday in November. Throughout the United States during this period the Bicentennial Commission has encouraged the making of arrangements for public gatherings, pageants, plays, processions, musical festivals, tableaux and other appropriate events.

Worldwide Celebrations.

On the day of the anniversary itself, as exemplified by Mr. Sterling's dinner, there will be celebrations not only in the United States, but throughout the world. In Paris, for instance, the commemorative events will last for two days. The foremost of these events will be a ceremony at the Sorbonne, under the joint auspices of the Universities of Paris and the Comité France-Amérique. The Prime Minister will preside, and the President of France will head a distinguished audience of Americans and French.

As an example of the esteem in which Americans hold George Washington, I would quote the following estimate of him by Mr. Coolidge, the former President of the United States:

"His was the directing spirit, without which there would have been no Independence, no Union, no Constitution, and no Republic. His influence grows. His stature increases with the increasing years. In wisdom of action, in purity of character, he stands alone."

A Pumice Isle.

I recently learnt, in conversation with a chemist, that many people associate pumice stone with the eruption of volcanoes, and look for an increased supply at a cheaper rate after every fresh volcanic disturbance. Of course, none of the white stone in use comes from active volcanoes, but from one or two quarters of the globe where there are rich deposits of the article. The richest of these at present under working is to be found in the island of Lipari, situated in the Tyrrhenian Sea. This island consists mainly of lavas and other highly siliceous volcanic products. The district where the pumice stone is actually found is called Campo Blanco or Monte Petalo, and is nearly two thousand feet above the level of the sea. In these high hills the workmen ceaselessly tunnel deep burrows, working by the uncertain and primitive light of candles. The lumps of pumice stone which they meet in the course of their excavations are loaded in baskets on the backs of mules, and conveyed down the hill-side to the seashore. There the stone is sorted, packed and shipped to Messina and Leghorn, whence it is distributed to the markets of the world.

An Earthquake in Kerry.

A correspondent who read an article in the Irish Times yesterday about earthquakes sends an extract from the Universal Magazine for July, 1773, which under the date July 11th, says:—

"Accounts are just received from Ireland of a most violent earthquake which lately happened in the westerly part of that Kingdom. A whole town in the County Kerry is destroyed."

QUIDNUNC.

IN MEMORIAM.

Two stained glass windows by the Co-operative Stained Glass and Mosaic Works, Ltd., 24 Upper Pembroke street, Dublin, to the order of the Earl of Meath. They are being erected in Christ Church, Bray, in memory of Kathleen Harriet Brabazon, daughter of the eleventh Earl of Meath, who died on the 15th February, 1930, and Reginald, twelfth Earl of Meath, who died on the 11th October, 1929.

"DAVID GARRICK."

CARL ROSA OPERA REVIVAL.

MR. REGINALD SOMERVILLE'S opera "David Garrick," which was first produced by the Carl Rosa Opera Company at Covent Garden in 1920, was revived by the same company, and given its first Dublin performance last night. There was a large audience, and the work was received with evident pleasure. The production gave occasion for Mr. William Boland's return to the company. The popular tenor sang well and worked hard in the part of David Garrick, and there was a strong supporting cast, which included Frederick Collier as Mr. Ingot, Mabel Baker, his daughter, and several other of the company's principal singers. Mr. Arthur Hammond conducted, and Mr. Hamish Wilson was stage director.

The story of the opera follows closely the form of Tom Robertson's comedy, which was well known to playgoers not many years back, through frequent performances by the Compton Comedy Company, the part of David Garrick being one that was much favoured by the late Mr. Edward Compton. Scenes in Ranelagh Gardens by night, and at a ball in Mr. Ingot's house, offered good opportunities for operatic effects, not only in the matter of staging, but also in the musical line. Mr. Somerville's music, which is light and pretty during the greater part of the opera, includes some graceful dance measures.

"David Garrick" is not to be regarded as grand opera—it may be compared fairly with Edward German's "Tom Jones." The central episode of the story is Garrick's feigning of drunkenness at Mr. Ingot's ball in order to disgust his host's daughter in accordance with his promise. This was also one of the strongest parts of the music, Garrick's drinking song being followed by a brilliant duet, in which Miss Baker and Mr. Boland were heard in effective collaboration last night. The concluding scene is laid in the Green Room at Drury Lane Theatre.

A relay of the performance was broadcast by the Dublin Broadcasting Station.

OBBLIGATO.

PRINCE LENNART OF SWEDEN.

FORTHCOMING VISIT TO LONDON.

Prince Lennart, grandson of King Gustav of Sweden, who is renouncing his Royal rank in order to marry Mlle. Karin Nissvandt, is due to arrive in London with his fiancée at 7 p.m. on Tuesday next. They will stay at the Dorchester Hotel for three weeks, in order to obtain the necessary residential qualification before being married in London. Mlle. Nissvandt's father and mother will accompany them.

The engagement was announced last year, and the King of Sweden refused his assent to the marriage. Mlle. Nissvandt is the daughter of a prominent Stockholm businessman.

FILM CENSORSHIP.

BRITISH HOME OFFICE AND UNIFORMITY.

The British Home Office last night issued a letter which has been sent to all licensing authorities under the Cinematograph Act, 1909, in England and Wales dealing with the work of the film Censorship Consultative Committee.

The Home Secretary has asked the Committee to direct their attention in the first instance towards securing greater co-operation between the local licensing authorities and the British Board of Film Censors, and towards ensuring greater uniformity of practice in the administration of the powers of film censorship which the licensing authorities derive from the Cinematograph Act.

IMPORTS DUTIES BILL.

THE ADVISORY COMMITTEE.

QUALIFICATIONS OF CHAIRMAN.

FROM OUR PARLIAMENTARY CORRESPONDENT.

WESTMINSTER, Friday.

THE net result of this afternoon's further discussion in Committee on the Imports Duties Bill was that the structure of the bill remained unchanged. The whole debate was addressed to the composition and duties of the Advisory Committee which is to be set up under the bill.

Some concern was manifest as to the man who was to be chosen as chairman of this important, semi-judicial body, and on this point the Chancellor of the Exchequer was more enlightening as to the kind of person they would not appoint. He ruled out a civil servant, not because there was any doubt as to his impartiality, but because such an appointment might give rise to the idea that the Minister of the Department he represented might make suggestions. Neither would they look for a man engaged in the conduct of a great manufacturing or industrial business; for whilst his experience might be invaluable, it might be thought that his judgment was coloured by the fact that he had been long engaged in an industry of a particular kind. The like considerations applied to a member of a trade union. They did not want people on the Committee who represented interests, nor did they want a distinguished economist, however useful his advice might be. The man they wanted was one who had some practical knowledge of business, although not himself engaged in it, and it was certainly not easy to get a man of the type they required.

Mr. C. Brown suggested that one should be imported. (Laughter.)

Mr. Chamberlain, continuing, said that the selection would not be made without a very exhaustive examination of all the materials available. The one thing certain was that the appointment would go to a man who was thoroughly capable, and was able to command public confidence.

DUTIES AND WAGES.

On Clause 3, which empowers the Advisory Committee to recommend the imposition of additional duties in respect of special classes or descriptions of goods, Mr. Mander sought to provide that the Committee, before making its recommendations, should satisfy itself as to the scale of wages paid, hours and conditions of working, efficiency of the organisation, and so on. He believed in the Committee being given definite lines on which they should work, as nothing could be worse than that, behind the shelter of a tariff wall, manufacturers should slumber and sleep.

Mr. Hore Belisha, resisting the proposal, said that the amendment would cause a great deal of delay, and would greatly hamper the Committee in arriving at decisions. No doubt, the matters dealt with by the hon. member were of great importance, but they would be more suitably dealt with by the Legislature than by the Committee.

The amendment was rejected by 245 votes to 42, and the clause having been added to the Bill, the House rose at 3.50.

THE YOUTH MOVEMENT.

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE LECTURE.

A largely attended meeting of the University College Gaelic Literary Society was held last night in the Physic Theatre of the College, when the Auditor, the Rev. Thomas Bardain, S.J., read a paper in Irish, the subject of which was the Youth Movement.

The lecturer alluded to the fact that the promoters of the Gaelic language had been working for the past ten years, and he asked why more Irish was not heard amongst the people. He feared that the people would lose faith in the movement if better results of the teaching in the schools were not produced, so that they may be seen and heard. What happened the Irish language after the youth had left the schools? Neither University regulations nor Civil Service regulations seemed to induce the young people to use what they had learnt. The reason was, he thought, that young Irishmen and women were asked to comply with too many obligations. They were told by some persons that they must be broad-minded, and to put only the ideal before the people, such as to avoid certain games and dances.

It would be much better, he said, if they were to concentrate their energies on the cultivation of Irish reading, in order to combat the effect of certain English literature and Irish light reading, and to avoid the pictures, which were much more to be feared than any foreign games.

Dr. Douglas Hyde presided.

THE HERMIONE LECTURES.

The annual course of lectures on Art, established at Alexandra College, Dublin, in memory of Hermione, Duchess of Leinster, will be delivered on the afternoons of March 1st, 2nd, 3rd and 4th, at 4 o'clock, by Mr. Stanley Cursiter, O.B.E., Director of the National Gallery of Scotland. Mr. Cursiter is himself a fine artist in portraiture and landscape painting; he is a native of Orkney, and frequently takes the landscape of his own island as the subject of his pictures. He is represented in the permanent collections of several art galleries, among them Liverpool and Munich. As Director of the National Gallery in Edinburgh, he has under his care a notable collection, housed and finely arranged in a building of exceptional beauty; he is also Keeper of the National Portrait Gallery of Scotland, which is now being rebuilt.

In the present course on "Painting in Scotland," the lecturer will deal in the first three lectures with Scottish Art, leading up to Raeburn, to whom Lecture III. will be devoted. In Lecture IV. Mr. Cursiter will speak of the developments in painting since 1850, including the Glasgow School and the present-day painters. The lectures will be illustrated by lantern slides. At the opening lecture the chair will be taken by the Archbishop of Dublin, Visitor of Alexandra College.

SATIRE IN ANCIENT ROME.

COLLEGE CLASSICAL SOCIETY'S DISCUSSION.

"Roman Satire" was the subject of a paper read before the College Classical Society at Trinity College, Dublin, yesterday afternoon by Miss E. A. Price. Mr. J. M. Henry, M.A., F.T.C.D., was in the chair.

Miss Price described and compared the work of those writers, from Ennius to Juvenal, who in satire had used a form of composition unattempted, as Horace said, by the Greeks, and which Pliny had said to be entirely Roman. The earliest satirist was Ennius, but the founder of satire as we know it was Lucilius, who first introduced the element of censure and invective. Varro's works had been lost, but the fragments which survived were superior to those of Lucilius, and showed the Roman gift for epigram—"a fault in a wife must either be endured or cured; who cures it makes for himself a better wife; who endures it makes of himself a better man."

Horace's satires in form and manner were a protest against the roughness of Lucilius, whom he freely criticised; as Persius said, Lucilius flogged the town, but Horace managed to probe every fault while making his friends laugh. Persius himself was steeped in the works of Horace, but he viewed life from his study. Juvenal excelled in force, but was essentially an orator, handling themes drawn from an earlier age.

The Chairman pointed out that Roman satire was predominantly of a direct type, a forthright description and denunciation of follies and vices. Later writers had developed an indirect satire which caricatured social evils in imaginative fiction, as in "Gulliver's Travels" and "Erewhon."

OVERTURE FROM "RAYMOND."

THE orchestral concert to-night by the B.B.C. Orchestra, under the conductorship of Edward Clark, will be broadcast by the National Station at 9.40. The programme will open with the Overture, "Raymond" (Thomas). Thomas, although known almost wholly now by "Mignon," was the composer of at least twenty operas and full-sized ballets which enjoyed great popularity in the second half of last century. In his own day, indeed, he was easily the most popular of composers for the Paris stage. The latter part of his life was spent, however, in teaching, as head of the famous Paris Conservatoire—a post which he held for twenty-five years. It was the success of his opera, "Hamlet," following on "Mignon," which won him that distinction, and to "Mignon" he owed the award of the Grand Cross of the Legion of Honour, which was given him on the occasion of its thousandth performance. The opera, "Raymond," of which only the Overture is now played, although that is well known and popular, appeared in 1851.

IRELAND IN LONDON.

THROUGH THE EYES OF AN EXILE.

FROM A CORRESPONDENT.

SOMEBODY remarked once that every physician in London was an Irishman or Scotsman, or an Irishman or Scotsman by extraction. There is a little truth in that, as in most of such generalisations; but it is also true nowadays that nearly every successful woman doctor in Britain is either Irish or Scotch directly or by extraction. Since the War there has been a weeding out of women doctors, and only those who have won the confidence of a large circle of people now remain in practice. One of the most notable of these women is Dr. Browne, now of Stepney, a native of Cork and a graduate of the N.U.I. She is now Medical Officer of Health for Stepney, one of the poorest quarters of London's East End, and is the only woman in England to hold such a post.

A Health Week was organised at Stepney this week, and the Free State High Commissioner in London opened an exhibition in connection with it at Whitechapel on Monday. There was an attractive display of Irish eggs, condensed and dried milk, butter, carragheen moss and the like. Mr. Dulanty spoke of the great value of Irish butter and milk in feeding children of such crowded areas as the London East End. He declared that the milk (and its derivatives) taken from grass-fed cattle was of higher food and vitamin value than that of stall-fed beasts. More and more this fact is coming to be realised by dieticians, and the more keenly it is recognised the better for Irish dairy produce. Ireland's dairying competitors in few cases can leave their cattle out on grass so long as the Irish farmer, in our mild climate, can leave his.

RUGBY VISITORS.

To judge by the scenes at Euston on the night preceding the Irish-English Rugby football match in Dublin, it seems that the Irish in London are more numerous and more exuberant than ever. A railway official on duty there that night said, to the astonishment of at least one listener, that he would far rather deal with an Irish crowd than with an English or Scottish one. "But the English and Scottish are better disciplined, surely?" asked the listener. The official paused. "That's true," he conceded, "but they're not as reasonable as the Irish, we find. Give an Irishman a good reason for anything, and he is the most patient and good-tempered fellow in the world. It's always a pleasure to deal with him," concluded the Cockney heartily. The Irish coming back to London on Sunday morning, after the defeat of their team, were less high-spirited; but that had more to do with the hour of the day than with their defeat. It is easier to be merry at eight in the evening than at six in the morning. Yet nobody could truly describe the Sunday morning crowd as downhearted.

It is a good many years now since the first squash-racquet court in Dublin was made at a club in St. Stephen's Green. The game has something about it akin to the Irish game of handball, and a similar appeal to the Irish. Mr. Hugh Law used to be a constant player both in London, where he was a Nationalist member of the House of Commons, and in Dublin. His opponent was often Sir Nigel Playfair, the actor and producer of many triumphs at the Lyric Theatre, Hammersmith, another amateur of this sport. The London squash-racquet champion is now Mr. Gerald French, son of the late Earl of Ypres, who recently produced a book of reminiscences, part of which was designed to give his father's version of the controversy about the war in 1916, which developed into a political issue, with Mr. Lloyd George on one side, and the late Earl of Oxford and Asquith on the other. Mr. French is father of Lady Brougham and Vaux.

THE TEXTILES EXHIBITION

Next week a British Textiles Exhibition will be opened in London. One of its most interesting sections will be that devoted to Irish linens. It is said that Belfast and Portadown are rivalling each other now days in their efforts to make linen more attractive not only to the housewife but to women in general as wearing apparel. The new uncrushable linen is available this year in many unusual shades, which make it peculiarly desirable for wear in dusty and sooty towns. Dress designers are experimenting with delicate colours flecked with lighter tones. This only to make linen the most useful and pleasant of summer garments; for its texture has always recommended it for wear in bad weather, though the fact that it crushes so easily, and was used only in light colours made it impracticable for any women save those to whom the laundry bill was of little account.

At the Stage Society last week-end Miss Ellaline Terriss was telling her fellow-workers that she has been on the stage for forty-five years. Nobody would have believed it of her hand. Despite its hard work, and often its precarious character, the life of an actress seems to keep a woman young—in heart as well as in face. There is, for example, Miss Marie Tempest, who, save for differences of dress, looks now much as she did in the picture-postcard days of twenty-five years ago. It seems to have been always the case that actresses "wore well," in many senses of the words. A new life of Dorothea Jordan has just appeared. It tells the story of this comedienne, daughter of a rich Dublin man, and, on the maternal side, granddaughter of a Welsh parson, who became the mistress of the Duke of Clarence, who later was King William IV. She bore him ten children, most of whom married very well. A Stranger still, though she had in theory an allowance from him of £1,000 a year, her earnings did much to maintain their home, and it was even said that he sometimes drew her salary from the theatre. She worked through all the years of their association, and when she and her royal lover had parted it was she who supported their many children, all except the eldest, Sophia, and launched them in the world. Yet she was left to die alone in France, whither she had fled on the advice of her erstwhile lover, who wished her out of the way, to escape imprisonment for debt. She were these debts her own, but they were contracted in her name by a defaulting brother-in-law. Yet she died young, at fifty or so in heart, face and figure.

It is officially announced that the Cabinet has decided to revert to the rule which formerly prevailed, that Cabinet Ministers should not take part in by-election campaigns.

TRINITY COLLEGE NOTES.

THE GENERAL ELECTION.

"HISTORICAL" DEBATES.

FROM A CORRESPONDENT.

THE election fever which gripped the country early this week manifested itself inside College in a surreptitious manner that was immediately checked by the authorities. For a short time a few of the more violent posters printed by some of the parties were displayed in the rooms of the "Historical" until the danger of attack by the opposite party caused them to be removed to the less public rooms of the students. The meetings of President Cosgrave last Sunday and Mr. de Valera on Monday night in College Green drew a large number of Trinity men to hear the speeches. Other signs that University men take a keen interest in politics were not wanting. Many acted as canvassers; some lent their cars and drove for others on election day, and a few of the bolder spoke at public meetings.

A motion which may change the quality of debating in the College Historical Society has been proposed to that Society, and probably will be passed. According to its terms men of prominence in public affairs will be invited to speak as set speakers without the formality of suspending standing orders. Hitherto non-undergraduates have been invited to take the chair at the Society's meetings, and, as the chairman delivers his address at the conclusion of the debate, his speech is rarely impassioned and more often is a post-mortem. The proposal before the Society has met with much success at the Oxford Union.

CHURCH HISTORY.

The Treasurer of the Historical Society, Mr. T. de V. White, and Mr. D. P. Owens will depart on Tuesday night for Edinburgh, where they will participate in a debate with the Edinburgh Speculative Society on the following night. The Librarian, Mr. C. Flynn, left for London on Thursday night to speak at London University in an inter-debate. Mr. Flynn took the place of Mr. W. B. Stanford, Sch., who was stricken with influenza at the last moment.

Professor W. Alison Phillips, Litt.D., who will deliver public lectures next week on Modern History, is the general editor of a new three-volume history of the Church of Ireland. The work will come out in June to commemorate the fifteenth centenary of the coming of St. Patrick to Ireland, and will be published by the Oxford University Press. Contributors to this history will be Trinity men mainly, and will include such scholars as Professor Newport White, D.D.; Professor J. E. L. Oulton, B.D.; the Rev. N. D. Emerson, Ph.D.; the Rev. St. J. D. Seymour, Litt.D., and the Rev. G. P. Jourdain, D.D.

Although the Board of Trinity College has elected the people who will receive honorary degrees in June, their names will not be made known until after the meeting of the Senate at 11 o'clock this morning. A Fellowship in Classics will be granted to the successful candidate in compliance with the rules governing Fellowships in the College Statutes. Dr. R. A. Q. O'Mara, a graduate of Trinity, has been awarded a grant from the Rockefeller Foundation. Several of last year's Moderators are applying for travelling scholarships to the United States.

The Classical Society held its first meeting under the new rule, which admits women to the Society as associate members. This rule also provides for at least one afternoon meeting in every term which women may attend, with the privilege of reading papers, if they so desire. Yesterday at 3.30 p.m. in the Graduates' Memorial Building, Miss Price read a paper on "Roman Satire," and, to judge from the large attendance, the new arrangement will find favour among both sexes. Fraulein Holtzhoff will read a paper in German at the Modern Language Society next Tuesday afternoon.

Another step in co-operating with the women students of the College has been taken by the Hockey Club. This enterprising group has joined with the Women's Hockey Club to run a combined dance at the Metropole, Dublin, on March 10th. On February 29th the Modern Language Society will hold its annual dance at the Gresham Hotel.

Chagrin and amusement marked the faces of readers of the annual T.C.D. Valentine number on Thursday morning. Lecturers spoke to indifferent audiences until the first excitement of seeing if one had been mentioned in a Valentine wore off. The opportunity to settle old scores anonymously was utilised by many, and neither members of the staff nor the better-known students escaped the bitter darts of satire. This year the works of A. A. Milne furnished the most fruitful source for quotations, followed closely by the ever-popular Shakespeare.

THE LIFFEY.

An unhappy afternoon was spent last week by the Boat Club crew in training for the Putney Head-of-the-River race next month. While rowing from Island Bridge to Ringsend, the boat ran into heavy seas below Butt Bridge. The crew were forced shortly afterward to bail out the boat with their shoes. Another start was then made, but two waves struck the good ship opposite the British and Irish dock, and completely swamped her. Owing to the good sense of the coxswain, R. J. O'Neill, the boat was quite close to the shore, and the swamped crew were offered a wide selection of lifebuoys, lines, and other useful instruments for rescuing themselves from the icy waters.

On Thursday afternoon the Third XV. won the Minor League Cup by defeating National University by 11 points to nil. After the match Mrs. W. H. Acton presented the cup to the captain, E. C. Allberry, and silver medals to the winning players. On Wednesday afternoon the Second XV. will meet National University for the final match in the Junior League Cup.

On Tuesday, Dr. Walter Smith, M.D., F.R.C.P.I., died at No. 25 Merrion square, at the advanced age of eighty-eight. For many years Dr. Smith was a well-known figure in the Medical School, where he was Professor of Materia Medica. During his College career he had a distinguished record, graduating as Senior Moderator and Gold Medallist in Experimental and Natural Science.

A LONDON-GAELS' CLUB.

The formation of a London-Gaels' club was inaugurated on the 18th inst. by a luncheon held at the Moira Hotel, Dublin. A good number of Irishmen and women who returned to Dublin just prior to and since the establishment of the Irish Free State foregathered, and after discussion expressed themselves pleased regarding the proposed objects of the club, which are to be wholly non-party and non-sectarian in character.

A committee consisting of Mr. Louis Noble (chairman), Mr. H. McGough (treasurer), Liam O'Cathain (secretary), together with Miss Eilis Dill Nic Ghabhann, Bean Ui Lionain and Miss G. Gaffney was elected.

The thanks of the club were conveyed to Miss Gaffney for her invitation to the members to visit during the summer months her yacht at Malahide.

IRELAND AND THE '45.

"The Jacobite Rising of 1745," was the subject of a paper read by Mr. A. de Blacam, before the Dublin Literary Society last night. Fontenoy, he said, began what ended at Culloden. He told the story of the Highland rising and discussed the reason for the mysterious decision to retreat which was taken on December 5th, 1745, at Derby. The immediate cause of the decision which led to defeat was Prince Charles's insistence upon the celebration of Mass in Derby town. Charles, he said, like his grandfather, lost his kingdom for a Mass.

JAPANESE ULTIMATUM EXPIRES.

AERIAL BOMBARDMENT OPENS THE SHANGHAI BATTLE.

LAST MINUTE EFFORTS OF THE LEAGUE.

THE Japanese offensive to drive the Chinese out of Shanghai was timed to begin at seven o'clock this morning (11 p.m., Friday, Greenwich time).

"Zero hour" passed, however, without a decisive blow being struck, although the Japanese forces had been massing in the front line throughout the night, which passed quietly, except for occasional bursts of machine gun fire.

At 8.50 a deafening roar of artillery in the vicinity of Chapei indicated that the Japanese offensive had begun.

Last-minute efforts to avert conflict were made at a prolonged meeting of the League of Nations' Council last night, when, after exhaustive statements of the Chinese and Japanese cases, the Council decided to call a meeting of the whole Assembly for March 3rd, at China's request. The chairman made an appeal to Japan to delay the expiration of the ultimatum.

The coincidence of the Japanese ultimatum and the proclamation of the independence of Manchuria with the Japanese general election to-day is worthy of note.

"Axed" Canadian and United States airmen have offered their services for the defence of China against Japan.

ATTEMPT TO DELAY EXPIRY OF ULTIMATUM.

GENEVA, Friday.

The Assembly of the League of Nations is to be convoked on March 3rd, in accordance with China's request, under Article 15 of the Covenant.

This decision was taken at a prolonged meeting of the League Council to-night, after exhaustive statements of the Chinese and Japanese cases. The duty of the Council to continue its work for the maintenance of peace remains unaffected by the decision.

"We are on the eve of a great battle, in which 100,000 troops will be engaged. I request the Council to consider immediately, and put into execution, conservatory measures to stop Japanese action."

Thus Dr. Yen, the Chinese representative at Geneva, solemnly warned the Council of the urgency of the war menace in Shanghai.

Mr. Sato, the Japanese representative, referred to two regrettable accidents—the dropping of a bomb on the International Settlement, with loss of life, and the bombing of the refugee camp, which was the subject of Sir John Hope Simpson's protest. The latter incident, he explained, was due to aviators being misled by barbed wire entanglements round the camp.

OBLIGED TO USE FORCE.

"We are obliged to use force to defend ourselves and our lives," said Mr. Sato. "We do not want to attack unless it is inevitable and unavoidable. If we had had to do with a civilised State, we should have gone to arbitration or adopted any other means to find a solution. Other Powers before us have found similar action to ours the only means, because the League could not apply the Covenant in all its bearing in the case of China.

"Our only purpose is to protect our interests. Withdrawal from Shanghai would entail the renunciation of all our rights in China, which no Government could face."

Mr. Sato quoted figures showing that Japan held third position in the export trade of Shanghai.

The Japanese representative then referred to the proclamation of the independent State of Manchuria. Japan sympathised with the movement and helped it, he said, because she had suffered so much in Manchuria that therein she saw a solution of her troubles, which would enable the Japanese to live in peace and develop their interests.

Mr. Sato concluded by giving an assurance that Japan was prepared to withdraw her forces from Shanghai as soon as she had safeguarded her interests there, and thereafter to leave the protection of those interests to the neutral forces.

CHAIRMAN'S APPEAL.

Dr. Yen, replying, resented the libel that China was in a state of chaos and anarchy, and alleged that Japan had fomented disorder in China.

M. Paul-Boncour, the Chairman, made an eloquent appeal to Mr. Sato to delay the expiration of the ultimatum, in order to enable a settlement to be reached. Observing that it had been decided to convene the Assembly, he added:—"When the Council addressed its appeal to Japan it was mindful of Japan's great naval and military strength, but it was also mindful of the fact that it belonged to you to stop hostilities, seeing that you were on Chinese soil. We made a unilateral appeal, because Japan is a powerful country and great from every point of view."

Mr. Sato said that he endorsed the Council's anxiety for peace, and promised to transmit its appeal to his Government. If the Council meant to advise a complete retirement of the Japanese troops, it would be impossible for him to transmit such a request.

M. Paul-Boncour then urged Mr. Sato to telegraph with all speed to Tokyo, and added that the Council was prepared to address appeals to both sides with equal energy, if only the ultimatum could be delayed. He asked the Governments represented in Shanghai to reinforce the Council's appeal.

FROM OUR REPORTER.

CARRICK-ON-SHANNON, Friday.

THE scene at Foxfield, Co Leitrim, where Mr. Patrick Reynolds, a candidate for the Government Party for Leitrim-Sligo in the general election, and Mr. Patrick McGeehan, a detective stationed at Ballinamore, were shot dead on Sunday last, was described to-day in detail, when a charge of murder was preferred against Joseph Leddy.

Leddy, who lived at Foxfield, was arrested shortly after the occurrence on Sunday, and, at a special Court at Ballinamore on Monday, was remanded to Carrick-on-Shannon to-day, after formal evidence had been given. Mrs. Leddy and her two young boys were present and sat close to the dock.

Mr. E. J. Kelly, K.C., prosecuted on behalf of the Attorney-General (instructed by Mr. George Lynch, State Solicitor for Leitrim) and Mr. M. J. McGuire, Longford, defended, while Mr. F. J. Gannon, solicitor, held a watching brief for the next-of-kin of Mr. Reynolds.

COUNSEL'S STATEMENT.

Mr. Kelly, outlining the case, said that Mr. Reynolds was a member of the Dail until the dissolution, and Mr. McGeehan was a detective officer stationed in the district. On Sunday, 14th February, at about a quarter past three Mr. Reynolds, who was driving with a party of which Mr. McGeehan was one, called at the house of Leddy, the prisoner.

In the course of the last few years, said Mr. Kelly, Mr. Reynolds had rendered considerable services to Mr. Leddy, who is an ex-R.I.C. pensioner. Mr. Reynolds thought that Leddy was under great obligations to him, and he called to secure his support in the election, and possibly to get Leddy to work for him. The car was stopped outside Leddy's house, and Mr. Reynolds went into the house, where a dispute developed between them. Screams were heard—the screams of a woman—and Mr. Wrynne and Detective Officer McGeehan rushed into the house and saw that the accused man, Leddy, and Reynolds had a hold of one another. McGeehan and Wrynne endeavoured to separate them.

THE SHOOTING.

After they had been separated Leddy rushed to the corner of the kitchen and got hold of a double-barrelled gun. McGeehan warned him that he was a detective officer, and that he was armed. Leddy calmed down for the moment. They all left the house, and when on their way to the waiting car this terrible affair occurred. McGeehan, who was shot first, fell and staggered along fifty-four feet towards Fenagh, and then across the road to a bog, where he fell and died. Reynolds was shot at about sixteen feet from Leddy's door.

I submit, said counsel, that there can be only one decision, and that when I have proved the facts Leddy will be returned for trial on charges of the wilful murder of McGeehan and Reynolds.

THE EVIDENCE.

ORGANISER'S STATEMENT.

Mr. Michael Wrynne, the local organiser for the Cumann na nGaedheal Party, who was travelling with Mr. Reynolds to Foxfield, was the first witness. He said that on last Sunday he attended a meeting at Carrick-on-Shannon, at which Mr. Reynolds spoke. They left at about 2.30 p.m. by car. In the front of the car were Mr. O'Mahony and the driver, and in the back were Detective McGeehan, the witness, and Mr. Reynolds. McGeehan was not on duty with any occupants of the car. On the way back to Ballinamore, Mr. Reynolds made one stop for canvassing purposes, and called to some houses at Keshcarrigan. The next stop was at Leddy's house.

"That was at about 3.30," said the witness. "When we came there, Mr. Reynolds alone went into the house, and the rest of us stayed in the car. After some minutes we heard loud shouts inside. Detective McGeehan and myself entered the house. Reynolds, Leddy, Mrs. Leddy and two children were there. Reynolds and the accused had a hold of each other. We separated them, and Leddy immediately rushed to the corner and seized a double-barrel gun. McGeehan said that he was a detective, but I am not sure of the exact words that he used. He put his hand inside into a breast pocket. I think he took something out of his pocket, but I did not see it. He then rushed over towards Leddy. Leddy then quietened down somewhat. I said to Leddy that he was a very foolish man, but I can't say if he made any reply. I did not at any time see a gun in McGeehan's hand.

SHOTS FROM DOOR.

"Reynolds had at this time left the kitchen, and was on the road for about three minutes before McGeehan and myself left the kitchen. After Reynolds had left the house Leddy said that he would shoot all in the house. I said he was to be very careful. I then left the house, and McGeehan had left before me. When we were on the road Leddy rushed to the door. McGeehan was in front of the car and Reynolds was at the back of the car. I saw him put up the gun and shoot at Detective McGeehan first. He then turned his gun towards Reynolds and immediately shot him. As far as I can recollect, when Leddy pointed the gun at McGeehan, McGeehan said: 'If you shoot, I'll shoot.' I did not see anything in McGeehan's hand. "I rushed towards the nearest house," continued the witness, "to get someone to get a priest. I had only gone a very short distance when the car overtook me. I sent a man for the priest and the driver and myself went to Ballinamore Barracks."

Replying to Mr. Maguire, the witness said that he did not hear a single threat from Reynolds to Leddy, but he heard Leddy threaten Reynolds.

WHAT THE DRIVER SAW.

John McKeogh, 43 Ranelagh road, Ranelagh, Dublin, the driver of the car, said that he stopped the car outside Leddy's house. Mr. Reynolds got out of the car, and said to me, said the witness: "I want to see this Leddy fellow." He was about five minutes inside when I heard men's voices, which were excited. Then two little boys ran out of the front door, shouting, "Save my father." Wrynne and McGeehan got out of the car and hurried into the house. I remained in the car for about two minutes, and the excited voices were still going. I walked into the kitchen and saw Leddy and Mr. Reynolds. The accused was at the back door of the kitchen. I saw McGeehan and Wrynne separating them. After that I walked over to Mr. Reynolds, caught hold of him by the arm, and asked him out to the car.

During this time angry and abusive words were exchanged between the accused and Mr. Reynolds, but I don't know about what. There was another man already in the kitchen, but he took no part in the affair, and I don't know who he was. Reynolds came as far as the car with me, and we both stood alongside it. McGeehan and Wrynne were just coming out of the house. McGeehan went towards the back of the car, and I saw Leddy standing at his own door with the gun in his hands. He pointed the gun towards us. I heard him say: "It is loaded." Detective McGeehan came around to the front of my car with his revolver in his right hand and pointed it towards the accused saying, "There are more guns than yours," or something to that effect. After that he said, "I'll fire, Leddy, if you fire." A shot then rang out from Leddy's gun, and I saw Detective McGeehan stumble round the front of my car again and fall on some stones on the far side of the road. After McGeehan fell, I heard a second shot from Leddy's gun, and Mr. Reynolds fell at the back of my car.

BARRISTER'S EVIDENCE.

ATTEMPT TO GET THE GUN.

Mr. Barry Tynan O'Mahony, barrister-at-law, of Tallaghe, Co. Dublin, said that when the car was travelling to Foxfield he was asleep in it. He heard confused shouting, and then an explosion. He jumped to get out of the car. He then saw McGeehan fall against a heap of stones, and saw Mr. Reynolds running towards the rear of the car.

I shouted to Mr Reynolds to get into the car, said Mr. O'Mahony. Mr. Reynolds stopped and turned round, and shouted: "You need not think you will frighten me with your gun. I was never frightened; I faced better men than ever you were." I then heard a second shot. I saw a tall man (here the witness identified the accused) standing with a shotgun in his hand. He was in the act of breaking the breech to open it, and I saw smoke coming from the mouth of it. I jumped out of the car, going to where Reynolds lay. He said: "A priest, a priest." I then ran to the detective officer and caught him by the hand to try to pull him up, but I found that he was dead. I turned towards the accused, who still had the gun in his hand, with the breech open. He was looking down at the breech of the gun and he gave a wild sort of laugh. I ran towards him, and he pointed the gun at me from his waist. I said to the accused: "Don't shoot, don't shoot: we are unarmed. Why are Irishmen always shooting each othe." He said: "Are you C.I.D., too? Produce your gun." I said: "I am not C.I.D. I have no gun." Leddy then said something about a revolver, and I said: "The only revolver we had is behind me on the road."

I ran forward to Leddy and caught the gun, with my left hand on the barrel and my right hand on the breech. I saw then that the gun was not loaded, and I put my hand into the breech to prevent him putting cartridges in. I said: "Don't put another cartridge into that gun. With every shot you have fired you have brought down a man." He said: "I have, and I will shoot you, too. Who are you, and what brought you here?" I said, "I am a lawyer and a barrister. I think you should know me. I spoke for the Government at Carrick-on-Shannon to-day. Why should you shoot me. I never did you any harm."

A WILD, MAD LOOK.

We argued for about eight or ten minutes, and he seemed to quieten down.

He had a wild, mad look in his eyes, the witness added. I knew I was dealing with a madman. He was quiet then for a little while, and I heard women and children crying, and two women came to the door behind his shoulder. One woman said why did we come there to make trouble. "You were looking for trouble, and you got all the trouble you wanted." I said I never looked for trouble, and neither did Paddy Reynolds. I said: "There are three or four men shot down. Why did you shoot Paddy Reynolds?" The accused said: "I did shoot him. I will give him another, and I will shoot you, too." One of the women said: "Why did you come here trailing your flag."

The Justice—She actually said that, and two dead men lying on the road.

Mr. Kelly—Yes, and Mr. O'Mahony in danger of his life.

The Witness—I said: "We did not bring it into your house. It is every Irishman's flag."

Mr. Kelly—Who had it in the car?

Witness—McGeehan had been holding it.

WOMAN'S WARNING.

The woman said to me: "Go now, boy, while you have your life." She tried to quieten the accused man, and said to him: "You have shot enough men for to-day." I said: "How can I go and leave that madman with the gun to shoot down other innocent men?" He was fairly calm up to that, and said: "What men?" I said: "Don't you know the Guards from Ballinamore will be out in a few minutes; don't you recognise that they will get you and the rest of you sooner or later? Give me the gun. I won't harm you. You have a gun, and they will be shot and you will be shot. If you will give me the gun I will guarantee your life and won't let them shoot you."

He then got violent again and struck me with the barrel of the gun on the chin. I tried to remove the fore-piece of the gun. Leddy said: "You won't do it: you're too damned clever." He closed the gun and caught the palm of my right hand. He swung the gun back and hit me under the heart with the butt. He then shouted: "Wait a minute and you'll see what I'll do." He hit me a box or two on the face with his right hand, and I fell. I got up (he continued); I had not the strength to struggle any more. I saw him start to reload the gun, and one of the women caught him by the arm. He dropped some of the cartridges on the ground and stooped to pick them up. I ran round the corner of the house and escaped to O'Beirne's house. I saw the accused afterwards come out and look at the bodies with the gun in his hands.

Mr. Maguire did not crosss-examine.

Francis McNamee, Ballinalee, Longford, nephew of accused, verified a deposition already made at the Special Court on Monday last.

PRIEST DESCRIBES THE SCENE.

The Rev. P. O'Connor, Fenagh, said that when he went to Foxfield he found Mr. Reynolds lying on the road. There were signs of life in him as he administered the last Sacraments. Leddy said: "This is a terrible thing; but it had to be done. They came into my house to beat me."

Father O'Connor said that Leddy was excited. He said to Leddy: "The whole thing is only an accident." Leddy said: "There was a struggle, and the gun went off." Father O'Connor said, "Of course; go in and put up that gun at once." Leddy then opened the gun, took out two cartridges from the breech, saying, "I won't want these, so." Later Leddy put up the gun and helped the witness to complete the administration of the last Sacraments to Mr. Reynolds. Someone then discovered McGeehan across the road, and he administered the last Sacraments to him, assisted by Leddy and others.

Mr. Maguire (cross-examining)—In your opinion, was he a sane man?

Father O'Connor—I was afraid of him. I thought he was a dangerous madman at the time.

Dr. Charles Dolan, of Ballinmore, described the injuries to both. Mr. Reynolds was wounded in the thigh, and McGeehan was injured in the chest under the right collarbone.

POLICE EVIDENCE.

Detective-Sergeant Kenny said that Leddy at Foxfield on Sunday last said: "I suppose you know what happened. I will make no statement now. The men are dead, and we can't bring them to life." Leddy then seemed normal, and had his hands in his pocket and was smoking a pipe. The shotgun and cartridges were later found in Leddy's house.

Leddy was returned for trial to the Central Criminal Court.

Leddy was asked in court if he had anything to say, and he replied: "Nothing; only to enter a plea of not guilty."

The Acting Justice, Mr. Charles Flattery, paid a tribute to the late Mr. Reynolds, who, he said, always served his country well, and to Mr. McGeehan, and the expressions of sympathy were endorsed by Mr. E. J. Kelly, K.C., and Mr. M. J. Maguire (for the accused man, Leddy), and acknowledged by Mr. F. J. Gannon, solicitor, Mohill, who appeared for the next-of-kin of Mr. Reynolds.

Leddy was then removed to Sligo Jail.

THE AMERICAN MARKETS.

CHICAGO MARKETS.

CHICAGO, Friday.

Wheat values advanced in sympathy with the strength of the Stock market, while considerable small-lot buying, a good foreign inquiry, and firmer Argentine offerings further assisted the rise. There was persistent rumours that some constructive announcement is forthcoming from Washington regarding the Farm Board holdings which are being withheld from the market. A partial reaction subsequently occurred owing to heavy realising and advices of favourable weather, while selling by mit local due to the reaction in maize, was another bearish factor. Maize values improved on bullish Argentine crop news and in unison with the strength of wheat. Covering operations further assisted the rise, but prices subsequently reacted owing to liquidation and poor support. Increased offerings, together with stop-loss selling, was another depressing feature, but values again moved up partially on the late firmness of wheat and on covering operations in distant positions. Rye prices were influenced by the movements of wheat. Oats values ruled steady, but trading was narrow.

WHEAT opened very steady at 5c. to 1c. rise, and closed steady at 3c. to 7c. improvement.

Dublin Pianists Win All The First Prizes.

Adjudicator's High Praise at Belfast Musical Festival.

FROM OUR SPECIAL REPRESENTATIVE.

THE Belfast Musical Competitions were continued yesterday, and a feature of the contests was the success of the Dublin pianists.

Piano, for competitors 15 and 16 years of age. Fourteen entries. Test pieces: "Consolation in D" (Arensky), "Pantomime" (Mosykowski), and reading. Those in this class who entered for the Ord Scholarship were further tested in musicianship.

1, Leslie Margaret Pielou, Dublin (195); 2, Dorothea Taylor, Belfast (192); 3, Muriel Rea, Dublin (184) and Jim J. S. Wilson, Belfast (183) were also awarded a prize each, there being very little difference between them.

"I have been delighted with this class and have been able to mark the competitors very highly," said Mr. York Bowen, the adjudicator. They had, however, thoroughly deserved the marks. He had found in the class at least two competitors who were real musicians.

The winner of the Ord Scholarship was Dorothea Taylor, Belfast. There were four entries. Miss Pielou, first in the Pianoforte Class, did not compete for the scholarship which is associated with it.

Piano duet, for competitors aged 11 years and under. Twenty-seven entries. Test piece: "Village Green," from "Eight Easy Duets," by Arthur Somervell.

1, Sheila Kelleher and Daniel McNulty, Dublin (89); 2, Nancy Martin and Peggy Shiels, Warrenpoint (88); 3, Moira and Dorothy Strawbridge, Broughshane, and Dorothy and Pat Herbert, Belfast (87). Commended—Victor and Margaret Wilson, Warrenpoint; Carmel Early and Paul Hayden, Dublin; Cora Briggs and Elizabeth Scott, Belfast, Hazel B. and Annie K. Bole, Dromore; Maureen and Howard McKeown, Belfast; John W. and Mona M. Kelly, Belfast; Ruth and Noel McCarthy, Dorothy Green and Bruce Morton, and Nan Woods and Margaret Boal.

Piano junior repertoire class, for competitors aged 14, 15 and 16 years. Eleven entries. First prize, the McDowell Cup and a replica; miniature cup for second prize. The candidates had to prepare "Prelude in D Minor," No. 6, book (Bach); "Reverie in F" (Debussy), and "Impromptu in C," op. 27 (Swinstead).

1, Estelle M. Wine, Dublin (185); 2, Maura Nolan, Dublin (182); 3, Valerie Trimble, Enniskillen (181).

Mr. York Bowen said that he had heard some most exceptional playing that day. There was a human element about and a sign of real feeling. He congratulated himself on having the Bach and the Debussy as test pieces, because he had just got the contrast in them he required.

Piano, age between 9 and 10. Sixty-four entries. Test pieces: "The Lonely Shepherdess" (Arthur Baynon) and "Leaves in the Wind" (from "Wayside Pictures.")

1, Maura O'Sharkey, Dublin (180); 2, Susanne E. McCully, Limavady (172); 3, Eric H. de Courcy, Dublin (171). Highly commended—Sheila Kelly, Warrenpoint (170).

VERSE-SPEAKING.

Verse-speaking, boys under 10 but over 8 Tests: "The Toll-gate House" (John Drinkwater) and own choice. Ten entries.

1, Bobbie Bowman (85); 2, William H. M'Comb (64); 3, Bob Rutherford, Bangor (83).

Mr. Frank Ridley, the adjudicator, said that some of the competitors looked as if they were interested in the picture they were painting, and that was what was really wanted. The winner's performance was very pleasing.

Boys under 15 and over 13. Tests: (1) "A Petition" and own choice. Four competitors.

1, D. B. White (87); 2, Billy M'Gimpsey, Bangor (85); 3, Bertie Reid (84). The fourth competitor, Thomas Kennedy, Ballyclare, received 83 marks.

EXTEMPORE SPEAKING.

There was a great crowd at the evening session of the Belfast Musical Festival, when the principal attraction was the class for extempore speaking, for which the prize was the trophy presented in memory of the late Rev. Robert Daff, who was recognised as a fine exponent of the art of extempore speaking. There were nine competitors, who were required to speak for five minutes on a topic which they were given twenty minutes to study. The subject chosen was: "You cannot make people good by Act of Parliament." The cup

Fianna Fail gained several more seats as the result of the counting in the Free State general election yesterday.—(Page 7.)

An exhibition of thoroughbred and Clydesdale stallions was held in the show grounds, Balmoral, Belfast, yesterday.—(Page 5.)

GREAT BRITAIN.

Mr. David Allan Hay, chartered accountant, continued his evidence in the trial of the Scottish Amalgamated Silks case in the High Court of Justiciary, Edinburgh, yesterday.—(Page 8.)

The House of Commons yesterday continued the committee stage of the Imports Duties Bill.—(Page 8.)

ABROAD.

Last-minute efforts were made by the League Council to delay the expiration of the ultimatum to China, but at nine o'clock this morning the Japanese offensive began.—(Page 5.)

SPORTING.

At Gatwick yesterday Sir Crispen won the Tantivy Steeplechase.—(Page 10.)

FINANCIAL.

London Stock Markets were cheerful, with War Loan Fives over par. London and North-Eastern Railway issues fell sharply on their fall from trustee status.—(Page 12.)

Loan and discount rates were easier. The Treasury bill rate fell to 4 per cent. from 4⅛ per cent. last week.—(Page 12.)

In Dublin the Stock Market was uncertain. Guinness units improved. Bank of Ireland stock fell 6 points.—(Page 12.)

The Moving Finger.

Heavy polls and the minute processes of the system of proportional representation have combined to delay the results of the Free State's general election. To-day, however, the main outcome—and it is a momentous outcome—begins to take shape. In contrast with the election of September, 1927, the Cumann na nGaedheal Party has fared badly and the Fianna Fáil Party has fared well. If the ex-Unionists, as we had hoped and urged, increased their polls, Fianna Fáil, too, has commanded unexpected resources of voting strength. As we write, 124 seats have been filled, and 28 (including the delayed contest for seven seats in the Sligo-Leitrim constituency) remain untenanted. Of the 124 decided contests Fianna Fáil has won 61—four more than its total number of seats in the last Dáil. The Cumann na nGaedheal Party has won 42 seats, and thus is 23 short of its total representation in the last Dáil. Labour, with only seven seats, has fared badly, and must win five further seats if it is to recapture its late strength. Fourteen Independent candidates have been elected; but on this occasion the Independents will be a less homogeneous body, and will include two deputies, Messrs. Anthony and Morrissey, whose revolt from the Labour Party has been vindicated by their constituencies. President Cosgrave had a handsome majority in Cork City, and, if Mr. McGilligan is returned for the National University, all the members of the late Ministry will have seats in the new Dáil.

Mr. Cosgrave and his colleagues, even with the help of all the Independents, cannot control the fortunes of the next Free State Government. At the moment his group numbers 56, while the Fianna Fáil and Labour group numbers 68; and it is beyond hope that later results will redress this considerable balance. The Government which has guided the Free State through ten difficult and critical years must resign itself for the first time to the cold shades of Opposition. In most other respects the outlook is obscure. The Fianna Fáil Party certainly cannot win such an independent majority as would be adequate backing for the drastic and revolutionary policy to which it is pledged. It seems to follow that, for a Government which can expect to remain in office for more than a single session, Mr. de Valera must have the full support of the Labour Party. Vital distinctions exist, however, between the policies of Fianna Fáil and of official Labour. Labour has accepted the Treaty; Mr. de Valera proposes, in effect, to repudiate it. We may assume, therefore, that, as the price of office, Mr. de Valera must be prepared to bow his crested head and tame his heart of fire; but, if he accepts Labour's terms and modifies his programme, he will invite grave trouble from his more ardent followers. A difficult situation may develop quickly into an impossible situation; and it is hardly a rash prophecy that within the next few months the country may be required to endure the anxieties and expenses of another general election.

Speculation must cease at this point. He would be a foolish citizen who should seek at a most delicate time to air his political acumen and to trumpet his disappointments or his hopes. One of the few certain things is that the coming weeks or months will be charged with excitements and crises; that radical issues will be at stake, and that the decisions or indecisions of political parties may affect her relations with her mighty neighbour and with the British Commonwealth, and may be pregnant with good or bad consequences for her own peace. We must welcome, therefore, the wise words which Mr. Cosgrave has addressed to the electors of Cork City. They are an appeal for the suppression of harmful passions and for a common devotion to the national welfare. No appeal by party leaders will exorcise the spectres of Irish politics, and it would be idle to suppose that the mere invocation of good-will could reconcile programmes which are utterly irreconcilable. Nevertheless, we believe that the courage and patriotism of the plain citizen can do much to help Ireland at this hour. They can create a public opinion which, on the one hand, will strengthen the good intentions of political leaders and, on the other, will check the forces of disorder. Mr. de Valera and Mr. Cosgrave will be burdened now with weighty responsibilities. In his degree every citizen of the Free State will share them, and during this year, when we celebrate the coming of Saint Patrick, the Churches must accept a solemn mission. Whoever Cæsar may be, they must make him conscious of his duties to the State, and, so long as he fulfils them, they must make the people conscious of their duties to Cæsar.

Agriculture in England.

The Minister for Agriculture, Sir John Gilmour, has given an explanation of the British Government's agricultural policy to the Central Chamber of Agriculture. British agriculture's most urgent issue to-day is that of the arable areas. "For that reason," said the Minister, "we placed in the forefront of our policy the problem of dealing with the wheat quota." In spite of every obstacle and the difficulty of the subject, it appears that an agreed scheme—so far as machinery is concerned—has been reached with the various interests, and a bill accordingly will make its appearance next week. Although Sir John told his listeners that they must wait for details until the terms of the measure are published, this announcement was received with cheers. The Chamber, before the Minister began his speech, had passed several resolutions asking the Government to amend the Import Duties Bill, so that agricultural produce and materials might be added to the schedule of exemptions, or removed from it, as opinion at home, or at the forthcoming Ottawa Conference, might dictate. Sir John's answer to these resolutions was not categorical, but, on the whole, it was reassuring. Agriculture, he showed, had been placed on an equality with industry by the bill for the first time in its history, and all agricultural produce, except meat and wheat, was treated on a broad, general principle. He besought the Chamber, therefore, to accept the ten per cent. revenue tariff with resignation, since every exception must place an additional burden upon the sorely-tried payers of direct taxes. Here he stressed the fact that the foundations of feeding-stuffs already were on the free list. Manufactured cake he had refused to put on the list, because there was reason to suppose that it could be made well and economically in England from the materials which were imported without tax into the country. At present no article can be taken out of the list, but it is likely that Mr. Neville Chamberlain will consider the conferring of such power upon the Commissioners when he drafts the Finance Bill. To the pig-producers Sir John offered a quota, if they would co-operate in the devising of a scheme of control that would not clash with existing treaty obligations which were "of great moment" to the country. The Minister's explanation and advice were well-timed; for, as Mr. John Beard remarked at the end of the meeting, the Government's scheme must depend for its success upon a generous response from those whom it is designed to help.

Nurses.

How the conditions of the nursing profession in Ireland compare with the conditions in England we cannot say; but Irish nurses certainly will take an interest in the final report of the Lancet's Commission on Nursing. The Commission was appointed to inquire into the causes of the shortage of candidate nurses in the various kinds of hospitals, and it has concluded that the conditions of employment must suffer a radical change before nursing becomes an attractive profession. The hours are too long. In 7 per cent. of the hospitals nurses worked from 65 to 69 hours a week; in 28 per cent. from 60 to 64 hours, and in 50 per cent. from 55 to 59 hours. Hospital food often is monotonous, prepared carelessly, and served in an unappetising fashion. Senior nurses frequently kill the self-respect of their juniors by discourtesy. Probationers are compelled to spend too much time on domestic work; and their accommodation is cramped and, in many cases, dingy. Most serious, perhaps, is the complaint that "at present the fear that they will be treated as children deters well-educated girls from taking up nursing." The Commission recommends several reforms. Pay, it holds, ought to be better: £30 for the first year and £35 for the second year are by no means too high. The day's work ought not to exceed thirteen hours, including three hours off duty, and one and a half hours for meals, with a free day every week. Holidays must be more liberal. Food must be better cooked; smoking ought not to be restricted unduly, and more opportunities ought to be allowed for social life. We hope that the Commission's findings will not be disregarded in England and—where the need exists—in Ireland. The supply of nurses must not fall short of the demand.

A Gold Rush.

Drawing an argument from silence, we may assume that last year's reported discovery of gold in Ireland has found that oblivion which envelops the majority of such rumours. Metal more attractive, because greater in quantity, seems to have been unearthed in Kenya, where the makings of a minor gold rush are already in progress. A few months ago, says the Nairobi Correspondent of the Morning Post, such discoveries as have been made would have been mocked as impossible; for the general theory has been that Kenya possesses no mineral wealth. Yet the gold deposits seem to be real enough, and by no means unplentiful. Hitherto they have not assumed the proportions of a rival Klondyke, but they are providing numbers of men already with a decent and steady livelihood. It is assumed that a fertile reef exists somewhere in the neighbourhood of the workings. Though it is still undiscovered, sufficient gold has been gathered from its "stringers," or tributaries, to justify a belief that the whole area—which embraces nearly three hundred square miles—will afford no small yield. There are now six hundred white men at the workings, and it is estimated that they are making a clear profit of some fifteen shillings a day apiece, so that the weekly yield of the deposits must represent at least £3,000. The discovery has been a godsend to Kenya, which has been oppressed heavily by unemployment; for any man can begin operations with a capital of £25, and most of the colony's unemployed are flocking to the Kakamega reef. If further important discoveries are announced, of course, there will be a rush of syndicates to the spot, and the ugly conditions of the great gold rushes will be renewed.

THE FLIGHT TO COLOMBO.

MR. SCALLY LANDS AT CROYDON.

The reason for Mr. Scally's solo flight to Colombo (Ceylon) was partially revealed yesterday when an Irish Times reporter learned that Mr. Scally had taken with him some important documents from the Hospitals Trust, Ltd., to be delivered to an Indian syndicate, who are preparing a scheme for organising sweepstakes on similar lines to those for Irish hospitals. It is understood that all the details of organisation are contained in the messages which Mr. Scally carries.

Beyond admitting that they were concerned in the flight, an official of the Foreign Section of the Hospitals Trust declined to make any further statement yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Scally, who left Dublin on Thursday afternoon in his Comper "Swift" light aeroplane, had hoped to reach Le Bourget Aerodrome, Paris, on the first "hop" of his flight, but was forced to land at Croydon owing to the approach of darkness and a heavy fog. In a telephone message to Dublin he said that he had forgotten to take his Customs Carnet, a pass which obviates the necessity for making a deposit on account of Customs duties on the aeroplane in the various countries where he is likely to land, but hoped to be able to procure a duplicate in London during yesterday, and to continue his flight later in the day.

COUNTY DUBLIN.

The counting of votes polled at the neral election in the County Dublin constituency was resumed yesterday morning 9 o'clock in the Town Hall, Rathmines. is was the third day of the count; there re still four vacancies to be filled. On ednesday Mr. H. M. Dockrell (C.nG.), S. MacEntee (F.F.) and Mr. T. Finlay nG.) were elected on the count of st preferences. On Tuesday Mr. S. ady (F.F.) was declared elected. By 15 a.m. yesterday Mr. B. O'Connor nG.) was elected on the eleventh count, Devitt (Labour) and Mr. J. X. rphy (Independent) having previously n eliminated.

curious position had arisen on the th count in relation to Messrs. Murphy Cuffe. Their figures made a dead-heat 5,055 each at the bottom of the list. The stion was which should be eliminated. axe fell on Mr. Murphy, on the ground t he had polled less first preferences n Mr. Cuffe. The latter had but a rt respite and went out on the twelfth nt. Mr. John Good (Independent siness candidate) was elected at 1.30 , on the thirteenth count. The distribution of Mr. Good's transferable votes not cause much effect. The figures for remaining candidates were as follows: ullivan, G. (C.nG.), 6,432; Curran, P. (Lab.), 5,397; O'Maille, P. (F.F.), 5; Ennis, J. T. (C.nG.), 4,408; Crawd, W. E. (Ind.), 4,275.

r. Crawford was eliminated, and the enth count consisted of the distribution of his transferable votes.

he fourteenth count was completed the elimination of Mr. Crawford, n the position was:—O'Sullivan, 2; Curran, 5,397; O'Maille, 5,115; is, 4,408. The distribution of Mr. rford's votes requiring close attenn, as 1,067 proved untransferable, was ngthened process, occupying a couple ours. At its conclusion the last hope Fianna Fail disappeared, Mr. Padraig aille being eliminated. The position re the sixteenth count was:—O'Sulli- 7,618; Curran, 5,963; Ennis, 5,666. 6.15 p.m. the sixteenth count con- ed, with the declaration that Mr. ullivan (C. na nG.) and Mr. Curran bour) had been elected without the e. The final figures were:—

O'Sullivan	8,136
Curran	7,609
Ennis	5,893

r. McCracken, Returning Officer, made declaration of the poll. He said that elimination of Mr. Ennis left only remaining candidates; therefore, it not necessary to transfer his votes. rdingly he declared Mr. Gearoid ullivan and Mr. P. J. Curran elected. H. M. Dockrell (C. na nG.), who d the highest number of first pre- ce votes, proposed a vote of thanks e Returning Officer and his efficient who, he said, had performed a long and tedious operation extending to sixteen counts with the greatest care and attention to every detail, and the result could not have been more correctly ascertained.

Mr. Sean MacEntee (F.F.), in seconding, also paid a tribute to the efficiency of Mr. McCracken and his staff, and also on behalf of the Fianna Fail panel to Mr. Eoin O'Keeffe, their director of the election; Mr. Wilmot Fogarty, Mr. Morrissey, and all the band of voluntary workers, to whose unselfish and tireless efforts their party's victory was due. It was a magnificent victory for County Dublin, and it remained for them to use it magnanimously. Let them in sober moderation amnesty the past so that all good citizens, irrespective of creed or race or former affiliations, might come together to build a better future. To-night disunion and dissension were at an end. Their feet were on the stepping stones. Let them march, and let all those who in the past had thought to travel the same road fall in with them. Henceforward the nation would be led with calm deliberation, with cool judgment, with prudent foresight, but persistently and continuously until it reached its destined goal and the flag of the Irish people, honoured and loved, floated over every sod of Irish soil. They did not wish a quarrel with anyone, least of all with their neighbours across the Irish Sea. They wished, indeed, to establish a real and lasting league with them, a league of peace and friendship, based on the common interest and common regard and respect for each other, of two peoples really free. (Applause.)

Senator Duffy, Director of Elections Labour Party, Mr. J. T. Ennis, and Mr. W. E. Crawford also supported the motion, the last remarking that he was quite satisfied with his own good performance, and hoped to live again to fight another day. (Applause.)

The motion was heartily adopted.

SOUTH MAYO.

Mr. FitzGerald-Kenney, in returning thanks, said that it was the third occasion on which he had been placed at the head of the poll. On this occasion he felt particularly grateful because of their renewal of confidence.

DONEGAL.

For the eight Donegal seats the first three to be elected were Messrs. P. S. Myles (10,077), S. M. Dillon (7,645) and N. Blaney (7,416). The first two are Independents, and the last-named is a Fianna Fail representative. The announcement of the results in Donegal was delayed owing to an exceptionally heavy poll. The count was adjourned until to-day.

The count was adjourned until 9.30 this morning.

In view of recent declarations made by leaders of the Labour Party, in which they expressed their intention to give general support to Mr. de Valera's policy, the foregoing table sets out totals of Fianna Fail and Labour preferences as compared with the combined first preferences registered to date by Cumann na nGaedheal and Independents. The 54,841 votes cast for "Other Interests," having elected members whose possible party allegiances are yet very uncertain, are omitted from the respective totals.

POSSIBLE FIANNA FAIL GOVERNMENT.

LABOUR PARTY AND A COALITION.

FORECAST OF EXECUTIVE COUNCIL.

DATE OF DAIL MEETING POSTPONED.

WHILE the election returns are not, as yet, complete, they point to a possible Fianna Fail Administration.

It remains to be seen how far the Labour group will support Mr. de Valera's Government, and on this depends, to some extent, its prospect of stability.

In the absence of a coalition, it is improbable that Fianna Fail will have the numerical strength to make its policy effective.

We print below an indication of a possible Fianna Fail Ministry, based on inference from the constitution of the "Shadow Cabinet."

The Executive Council yesterday decided to postpone the assembly of the Oireachtas till March 9th, and the Governor-General has issued a proclamation accordingly.

WHAT LABOUR GROUP MAY DO.

By Our Political Correspondent.

The election results, nearly all of which now have come through, indicate the formation of a Fianna Fail Government when the Dail meets on 9th March. It is not at all clear, however, that they will be able, by themselves, to establish a stable Government, and a coalition with the Labour Party seems to be generally expected.

Whether the Labour Party will agree to co-operate with the Fianna Fail Party in the formation of a Government is a matter upon which there is a conflict of opinion. Some hold that, as a matter of tactics, the Labour leaders might be disposed to play a waiting game, giving their help to the election of Mr. de Valera to the Presidency of the Executive Council, but withholding their general support until the new Government discloses, in some measure, the lines upon which it is disposed to proceed.

Actually their attitude has been foreshadowed by Mr. Davin and other Labour leaders in the course of the election campaign. They have stressed their strong opposition to the Cosgrave Government, which they would do their best to put out of office; but while they would help Fianna Fail to obtain power, there would not, under any circumstances, be a Fianna Fail-Labour coalition. While this is pretty definite, however, it might be well to make allowance for a possible revision of policy when a definite situation has to be faced.

A TREATY PARTY.

It must, of course, be remembered that Labour always has been a Treaty Party, determined to make all possible use of the opportunities which the Treaty affords. In this respect its policy was in conflict with that of Fianna Fail. When the Cosgrave Government resigned some time ago, following an adverse vote in the Dail, Labour refused to support Mr. de Valera for the Presidency; but the Labour leader (Mr. O'Connell), after a speech by Mr. de Valera on the final reading of the Constitutional Amendment Bill, No. 17, stated that the sentiments he then expressed would have altered his vote if they had been uttered before the proposed election.

The Labour vote, it would appear, will not be as large in the new Dail as it was at the dissolution, when it numbered ten. Nevertheless, it will in all probability be large enough to enable Mr. de Valera to form a Government.

THE SPEAKERSHIP.

A question that excites some interest is concerned with the personality of the Speaker of the Dail in the new session. While there is no indication of the views of the Fianna Fail Party the opinion has been expressed that it would not be surprising if Mr. M. Hayes, the present Speaker, should be re-elected—that is assuming his willingness to act. Such an arrangement would save a vote from the Fianna Fail Party. That Mr. Hayes has been an ideal chairman is universally admitted.

A FIANNA FAIL MINISTRY.

POSSIBLE COMPOSITION.

The allocation of portfolios in the new Ministry gives ground for interesting speculation. For a long time there has been what is known as the "Shadow Cabinet" on the Opposition benches. If this affords a trustworthy indication, the new Executive Council probably would be somewhat on these lines:—

President and External Affairs...	E. de Valera.
Finance	Sean MacEntee.
Justice	P. J. Ruttledge.
Local Government	S. T. O'Kelly.
Education	Frank Fahy.
Agriculture	Dr. S. Ryan.
Industry and Commerce and Vice-President	Sean Lemass.
Defence	Frank Aiken.
Posts and Telegraphs	S. Moore.
Lands and Fisheries	T. Derrig.

In view of the situation as it stands at present, it is, perhaps, natural that the several parties should refuse to commit themselves to expressions of opinion.

EXECUTIVE COUNCIL MEETS.

ASSEMBLY OF DAIL POSTPONED.

President Cosgrave presided at a meeting of the Executive Council at Government Buildings yesterday, when, no doubt, the position was discussed. Only three other Ministers—Messrs. Blythe, McGilligan and Fitzgerald—were in attendance. Their colleagues still are engaged in their constituencies.

The Council decided to change the date of the re-assembling of the Oireachtas from 2nd March to 9th March, in order to permit of the completion of the Leitrim-Sligo election.

GOVERNOR-GENERAL'S PROCLAMATION.

A proclamation for this purpose, issued by the Governor-General in the afternoon, stated that—

"By virtue of the power and authority in me vested, I, the Governor-General aforesaid, by this Proclamation, in the name of His Majesty the King, do hereby, by and with the advice of the Executive Council of the Irish Free State, summon and call together the Oireachtas of the Irish Free State, and each House of the said Oireachtas, to meet at the City of Dublin, on Wednesday, the 9th day of March, 1932, at the hour of three o'clock in the afternoon, in lieu and stead of the day, time and place mentioned in the said Proclamation of the 29th day of January, 1932, for the dispatch of such business as shall be submitted to the respective Houses."

FIANNA FAIL LEADING.

being the return of a second Government candidate, Mr. John Keating, whose figures then were 7,950, or 751 over the quota, for the fifth and last seat. His opponent in this count, Mr. P. Kehoe (Fianna Fail) had his total increased by 857 to 534.

MONAGHAN.

There was an enthusiastic celebration of the Fianna Fail victory in the Monaghan division. Over 3,000 people took part in a torchlight procession, and four bands were present at Mullinarry Cross-roads on Thursday night. It was at this point that Dr. Ward and Mr. E. Rice had promised to be present in the event of their return. The successful candidates kept the tryst and received an enthusiastic welcome, not only at the cross-roads, but throughout their tour of the district. At the opening of the meeting that was held announcements of the latest victories were made. The new members of the Dail were accompanied on their tour by prominent supporters of the Fianna Fail cause, members of the County Council and local clergy.

Dr. Ward, addressing the people, said that the eyes of the Irish race at home and abroad were looking towards Monaghan. Monaghan, he declared, had struck a blow against British Imperialism, which was then staggering around the country, and when next they struck at it they would knock it down. Dr. Ward paid a glowing tribute to those who had helped in the election campaign.

Mr. Rice also expressed his gratitude to the electors and told them that he had received a number of congratulatory telegrams from England, Scotland, Northern Ireland and America. He felt glad that so many of their exiled brothers took a keen interest in home affairs. In addition to the elected candidates, there were many other speakers, all of whom paid tribute to the friendly nature of the contest.

CORK, EAST.

When the count was adjourned in the East Cork constituency last night Mr. P. S. Murphy was top of the poll with 5,518 votes, but was over 1,000 votes below the quota (6,605). The count will be resumed this morning.

TIPPERARY.

Mr. Dan Breen (F.F.) obtained 8,817 votes on the first count in the Tipperary constituency.

LONGFORD-WESTMEATH.

After the declaration of the poll in the Longford-Westmeath Division a meeting was held under the auspices of Fianna Fail, Mr. Patrick Brett, C.C., presiding. Mr. James Geoghegan, who was enthusiastically received, thanked the electors for the support they had given him. He referred to the victories in Monaghan, Meath and other constituencies, and said that they had every reason to hope that the advice given by Mr. de Valera—that he wanted not merely a majority, but a strong and powerful party to carry out his economic programme—was being followed by the country.

The Chairman said that the result was not in the nature of a victory against their opponents; they had tried to heal old sores, and he hoped the people all over Ireland would join in assisting Mr. Eamon de Valera and his supporters to secure all the benefits that could result from a united Ireland.

THE FUTURE OF BURMA.

LEGISLATURE AND ROUND TABLE PROPOSALS.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

RANGOON, Friday.

The resolution, "that, though not entirely satisfactory, Mr. Ramsay Macdonald's statement at the Burma Round Table Conference on January 12th with regard to the future government of India at least afforded a suitable basis for determining the future Constitution, which would separate Burma from India," was adopted after a long discussion by the Burmese Legislature to-day.

During the debate, in which some Indians and a representative of the European Chamber of Commerce participated, a certain amount of constructive criticism was offered, and some dissatisfaction was expressed with regard to details of the scheme, but most members appeared generally ready to accept it.

BALLOT-BOX SECRETS. WHAT ELECTORS DID LAST TUESDAY

The following reproductions of last Tuesday's ballot-papers show (1) the numbers of first preference votes recorded for each candidate; (2) the positions of candidates after the first surplus or the papers of an "eliminated" candidate had been distributed; and (3) the final results of all transfers.

The "quota" represents the total numbers of first preferences divided by one more than the number of seats to be filled, plus 1. Non-transferable papers only arise from the elimination of unsuccessful candidates.

COLD PUNCH ON "TRIAL."

SPLENDID SPORT PROMISED AT BALDOYLE TO-DAY.

THERE will be sixteen or seventeen runners for the Grand National Trial Steeplechase at Baldoyle this afternoon, but the only horse engaged in the big Aintree race amongst the field will be Cold Punch. Mr. Coleman's horse was beaten by Sea Fisher and South Louth at the Baldoyle New Year's meeting, but now meets the former on 9lb. better terms. This difference might easily enable him to turn the tables on Mr. Ryan's horse.

There are many others, however, with excellent chances, such as Elsworth, who has taken kindly to steeplechasing and has plenty of speed; Zag, Nell's Son and Sack. Prince of Iveagh is reported to be lame, and may not run. It looks as if the winner will come from the lot mentioned, but it is an open race. Lady Helen McCalmont runs both Greek Princess and Princess Mir, to the exclusion of Southern Hero, who would be much fancied if he ran.

Cold Punch and Sack appear to hold the best chances, and the vote is for COLD PUNCH.

The following are the probable starters and jockeys:—

KYLECLARE (Parkinson), 5, 11-12.....J. Lenehan
SAHABELLE (Carroll), 5, 10-13.....J. McNeill
COLD PUNCH (Ussher), 5, 11-7.....W. T. O'Grady
ZAG (R. Cleary), a, 11-2 ..... J. Lynn
PUNCHESTOWN (C. Rogers), a, 11-2 .....
*PRINCE OF IVEAGH (Wellesley), a, 11-0 .....
J. Costello
SAHABELLE (Mangan), 5, 11-0.....P. Claxton
ELSWORTH (F. Clarke), 5, 10-12.....W. Kinsella
PRINCESS MIR (M. Barry), a, 10-9 .....
M. Barry
BALLYMAGARRY (Woods), a, 10-8.Mr. J. Woods
NELL'S SON (Hanly), a, 10-8...Mr. R. H. Stern
GOLEARIA (Leonard), a, 10-1..Mr. P. J. Leonard
ATHBEG (McKernan), a, 10-0.....(——)
WISE MAID (J. Dawson), 6, 10-0...P. Fitzgerald
SACK (Parkinson), 5, 9-12.....W. Redmond
ROYAL DENNIS (Kiernan), a, 9-10...M. Hynes
PRINCE MARTEN (Byrne), a, 9-7...Joseph Doyle
MARKET SQUARE (Rodgers), a, 9-7 .....
Mr. A. Rodgers

*Doubtful Starter.

There will be another big field for the Maiden Hurdle Race, including such well-known performers on the flat as Overall, Gallant Prince, Como and Hebrides. As an Irish Cesarewitch winner Overall catches the eye, there being no doubt as to his staying ability, and Craftsman's good showing when finishing second to Knight of the Mist at the New Year's Day meeting entitles him to considerable respect. The selection is

OVERALL.

Punchestown has been declared a runner for both the Grand National Trial Steeplechase and the Stewards' Steeplechase, and in whichever race he runs he should show up well. If started for the latter, he would probably be better suited by the distance, as in Heartbreak Hill's race at Leopardstown he was going as well as anything at this distance, anu the only race he won last year was over a two miles journey. Battle of Killiecrankie, Philalice, Coolinolagh and Light Handed are others with strong credentials. In the absence of Punchestown, may be the best to stand.

Going on the recent Leopardstown running, Same Again should account for most of the runners for the February Handicap Hurdle, including Polonius, who will now be at a disadvantage of 9lb. in the weights. It looks as if will win.

The only winner amongst the nineteen runners for the Feltrim Steeplechase is Drintown, whose 5lb. penalty for winning at Leopardstown would not put him out of the reckoning. Royal Ransom is bound to make improvement on the form he showed when running second to Anakim on New Year's Day, and the race may rest between these two. Probably the winner will prove to be

ROYAL RANSOM.

In the Corinthian Plate Double Crossed, an own brother to Impudent Barney, will make his first appearance. This race looks like falling an easy prey to CASTLEBAGOT.

Tote Double on Fourth and Fifth Races.

TRIAL 'CHASE.

TEST OF "NATIONAL" FORM IN BIG GATWICK EVENT.

THERE is an abundance of Grand National trials run at this time of the year, but one of the most important is the National Trial Steeplechase to be run at Gatwick to-day. No fewer than twelve of the nineteen acceptors are Grand National horses, and though all of them will not run at may be instructive if a comparison is made between the Liverpool and Gatwick weights.

	Gatwick.	L'pool.	Difference.
Remus	11 8	10 9	+13
Coup de Chateau	11 5	11 10	– 5
Alike	11 2	10 11	+ 5
Ottawa	11 1	10 8	+ 7
Annandale	10 13	10 10	+ 3
Shaun Goilin	10 12	12 4	– 20
Vinicole	10 12	11 3	– 5
Prince Cherry	10 7	10 7	—
The Ace II.	10 0	10 7	– 7
Great Span	10 0	10 7	– 7

Remus comes out worst on the comparison, and he is a non-runner. I understand that he will next be seen out at Kempton Park in a few days' time. Shaun Goilin is the favoured one, for he is asked to carry 20lb. less at Gatwick than at Liverpool; thus he meets Ottawa on 27lb. better terms and Alike on 25lb. better terms. Shaun Goilin, it is true, has shown no form for some considerable time, and his trainer is dissatisfied with his National weight, but he did not run a bad race at Sandown Park recently. He looked very fit, and I do not think he will improve much during the next few weeks. Nevertheless, he has almost been thrown into the handicap and should be very difficult to beat.

Kingsford is very fast over park courses, is a good jumper, and has done very well recently. He is not entered in the Grand National, but is sure to attract a lot of support and ought to gain a place. Wretham has improved tremendously these last few weeks and should go close, while Vinicole will not be easily beaten. I have no fancy for the American Grand National entry, Sea Soldier, and on a point of handicapping name as the winner, with Kingsford the best of the others.

Ballyscanlon has not done very well recently, but he is expected to show a return to form in the Stayers' Handicap Hurdle. Bendach is not an easy animal to train, but is fit, and Aruntius has claims on Sandown form. Icy Kiss ran well at the last Kempton Park meeting, but I shall support

ARUNTIUS.

One of the best young 'chasers in Jack Anthony's stable is whom I expect to win the Horne 'Chase. He was the unluckiest horse in the world to be beaten at Sandown and has won steeplechases in Ireland.

The last race, the Rusper Hurdle, may be taken by

SOLIPED,

who ran so well at Sandown recently.

GOSSIP FROM THE COURSE.

SIR CRISPEN'S WIN.

FLAMBENT AND BROKEN ICE CONTINUE THEIR SUCCESSES.

FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT.
GATWICK, Friday Night.

THERE was not a single good National horse in any of the fields this afternoon here, but there will be a shoal of them to-morrow in the National Hunt Steeplechase, to which I shall refer later. It was penetratingly cold here, and the racing was only just fair.

The Tantivy Steeplechase, the principal event of the afternoon, is one we always look to to show us possible National horses for future years; it generally attracts some of the best from among the novice class. There was one such in the race to-day, Martencito, a son of Marten and Lady Meander, who bred some good winners for D. Sullivan.

His credentials qualified him to be the red-hot favourite he was, but, unluckily, after landing over the water he slipped and shot Hardy out of the saddle. He was going very well at the time, too. The Brown Talisman then went on in front, but, after jumping the last fence, he was caught on the flat by Sir Crispen, who beat him by four lengths.

SENT 'CHASING RECENTLY.

Sir Crispen is a six-year-old son of White Eagle, who has been sent 'chasing only recently, and he acquitted himself so well that there should be a career before him. He was bought from Stanley Wootton last year by the American owner, Mr. G. H. Bostwick, who trains with Ivor Anthony. Clydesdale made a bad mistake at the fence in the straight and was pulled up.

There were two horses later who have been carrying all before them this year. One was Mrs. Gilbert Robinson's young chaser, Flambent, who was winning his fifth race in succession, and all handicaps, too, since the first week in January, when he beat Kinship and The Bird with the utmost ease in the Box Hill 'Chase, after The Bird, who had been making the running, began to stop coming to the last fence.

Flambent was an entirely worthless horse when first Roy Pope and then Reg. Day trained him on the flat, and Mrs. Robinson was advised to sell and take £100 for him if she could get it. However, she turned him out, kept him a few years, and then sent him hurdling. Last season he was running over the minor obstacles and losing in company a little above him.

DEFYING THE HANDICAPPERS.

He has taken naturally to 'chasing, and the big fences here came easy to him. He is a delightful, round-barrelled, medium-sized horse, with a very strong back and loins, who has been defying the handicappers ever since he started his winning sequence.

When he took the International Hurdle Race Broken Ice, whom Peter Thrale trains, was winning his fourth event in succession. He was not so good a favourite as Little Blackbird, but the Irish mare did not have a look in with him, for he made all the running and won by six lengths from the greatly-fancied Residue, with old Jugo third.

Tabor's stable, in which Little Blackbird is trained, had another favourite, Kirkgunzeon, in the Four-Year-Old Handicap Hurdle. This is a son of Little Marten, and he had every chance after jumping the last flight with Scotch Mist; but he made as if to duck for the rails half-way up the straight, and Scotch Mist came on and just beat him and Silver Sound.

Old Prospice improved on his last form a good deal when he came from nearly last place in the early stages of the race for the Ewell Selling Hurdle, and won easily from Montpelier. There was no bid for him, so he goes back to Stanley Wootton, who gave Senator Parkinson 155 guineas for him a few years ago out of a selling race, and has won race after race with him since.

The Selling Steeplechase was won by Afrikander, who had been bought in for 160 guineas after winning yesterday at Newbury. He came from behind to-day to beat Golden Holiday, and was then bought in for 105 guineas.

SELECTIONS.

The National Trial Steeplechase here to-morrow will attract a fair number of Grand National horses, including Shaun Goilin, the winner two years ago. Frank Hartigan has been anxious for some time to get Dudley Williams to ride him at Liverpool, and now that Sir Lindsay is out of action he will be free to take the mount both in the Grand National and to-morrow. Shaun Goilin has never been handicapped since he won the National, so flatteringly as he is here to-morrow.

Remus does not run as he is shockingly badly in, but he will be out at Kempton next week. Venicole, Ivor Anthony's National horse, will be in the field, and I expect him to improve on his last form, for after his race at Cheltenham at the end of December his trainer let him down. He should give a good account of himself.

Other National horses who will be in the field are Coup de Chapeau, Alike, Wretham, Prince Cherry and Great Span. They all, however, have Kingsford to beat, although the distance, 3¼ miles, is more than he has ever attempted in public. I think the race will be between Kingsford, Shaun Goilin, Vinicole and COUP DE CHAPEAU. The last-named who dead-heated with Easter Hero at evens in the Champion Steeplechase at Liverpool, is a great jumper, and he may be a good each-way speculation

The Stayers' Handicap Hurdle may be won by BEROADACH, while THOMOND II. should win the Horne Steeplechase.

RUGBY FOOTBALL.

SENIOR SCHOOLS' CUP.

VICTORIES FOR NEWBRIDGE AND HIGH SCHOOL.

BELVEDERE SURPRISED.

DOMINICAN COLLEGE, NEWBRIDGE, 3; BELVEDERE COLLEGE, 0.

There was a surprise result in the second round of the Senior Schools' Cup at Donnybrook yesterday, Dominican College, Newbridge, beating Belvedere College, last year's finalists, by a try (3 points) to nil, after a very hard match. Little good football was seen, play being mostly of a spoiling nature, and here Newbridge were good. Their forwards not only scrummaged better than the Belvedere pack, and were better in the loose, but they were also extremely quick up on the Belvedere backs, and Quinn, Belvedere's "star" player, could do little except kick in attack. Newbridge deserved their win, for they had more of the play than their opponents, but so keen was the tackling on both sides that it was only a snap score that brought them through in the end. They nearly scored a couple of times in the first half, particularly after a fine break through by S. Griffin, the scrum half, and it was that player who scored the winning try midway through the second half. The ball was heeled by Belvedere five yards from their own line, and, with Ryan fumbling, Griffin picked up and flashed over very cleverly.

Newbridge owed almost everything to their forwards, of whom Manning, J. Griffin, Canty and Hutchinson were the best, but J. Waters played a splendid game at full-back, fielding splendidly and kicking very well. A better full-back has not been seen on any school team this year. Dolan was a sound defender for Belvedere; McNeill and F. Quinn were the best of a three-quarter line that was too closely marked to be effective in attack. P. Quinn kicked cleverly at out-half, while in a beaten pack Walsh, Rooney and Maguire were the best. Teams:—

Dominican College, Newbridge—J. Waters; M. Kenny, J. Dwyer, J. Ryan, N. McNamara; R. Lett, S. Griffin; P. Manning, G. O'Kennedy, J. Griffin, M. Fitzgerald, P. Canty, F. Hutchinson, T. Waters, G. McDermott.

A PROMISING OUT-HALF.

HIGH SCHOOL ... 14. ST. COLUMBA'S COLL., 0

An excellent display by P. Walker, the High School out-half, was the chief factor in High Schools win by 1 goal, 3 tries (14 points) to nil over St. Columba's College in the other Senior Schools' Cup tie at Donnybrook yesterday. Walker's strong running frequently enabled him to beat the moderate St. Columba's defence, and his clever try in the second half definitely turned the game in High School's favour. Dunne scored the only try of the first half for High School, but early in the second half Boyle dummied his way over for a try, following a scrum near the line. Then Walker beat the whole defence to score a brilliant try beneath the posts, which he converted himself, and before the end Walker made an opening for Moore to make a good run and in-pass to Goff, who scored.

Mincill was a steady full-back for High School, fielding safely and kicking a good length. Walker was easily the best of the backs, and in a hard working pack, Hamilton, Goff and Sutton were outstanding. Allen was the only St. Columba's three-quarter to threaten the opposing defence, and he made one or two fine runs. The others were poor, and in a pack which was continually beaten for possession, Ledwill, Spiller and Love were best. Teams:—

St. Columba's—V. J. Blake; M. A. Blaine, Withrington, Allen, Noyes-Lewis; Jeffares, Wilkinson; Cooper, Ledwill, Hazenn, Spiller, Grene, Love, Leonard, Longford.

High School — Mincill; Dunne, More, Early, Meyer; P. Walker, Boyd; Caldwell, Watson, Keegan, Sutton, Beatty, Goff, Hamilton, Begley. Referee—Mr. A. P. Jones.

Belvedere College—K. Dolan; K. McNeill, F. Quinn, D. Conroy, M. Teevan; P. Quinn, B. Ryan; T. Walsh, C. Hearn, D. Kiely, F. Rooney, D. Maguire, J. O'Riordan, B. Aird, F. Beauclerc.

M. CROWE TO TURN OUT FOR LANSDOWNE TO-DAY.

AFTER the excitement of last Saturday's International, to-day is a comparatively quiet one, and only one of the senior matches to be played in Dublin promises to provide an interesting game. This is between University College and Bective Rangers at Terenure. National, who have been particularly unlucky as regards injuries to players lately, will not be at full strength, and will have their work cut out to beat Bective. In view of the International match with Scotland at Murrayfield next Saturday it is good news to hear that M. Crowe will figure in the Lansdowne side against Palmerston at Clonskeagh. It is to be hoped that he comes through the test all right, and so avoid the situation which arose on the eve of the English match.

Wanderers should keep up their winning record in their match against Blackrock College at Lansdowne road, and Dublin University, who have been showing a return to form, should account for Clontarf. Monkstown go to Limerick to play Garryowen. In the Metropolitan Cup competition University College 2nd play Wanderers 2nd at Donnybrook, and College of Surgeons meet Blackrock College 2nd at Belvedere ground, Glasnevin. A match which has aroused a lot of interest is the Provincial Towns' Cup tie between Drogheda and Balbriggan, to be played at Drogheda.

GAELIC GAMES.

COUNCILS TO MEET TO-MORROW.

HURLING SEMI-FINAL AT BIRR.

(By PAT O.)

The Leinster and Munster Provincial Councils will meet at Dublin and Limerick to-morrow. The secretaries report a fair amount of diminution in receipts and attendances, but the position of the Councils remains healthy. Progress with minor and school programmes continues. The Leinster Council has maintained its policy of extending the playing fields. The balance sheets reveal extended loans in aid of grounds, and the Munster Council has lent money to local promoters for playing fields and their improvements.

Mr. R. O'Keeffe, President Leinster Council, is unopposed for office. Hurling for Mooncoin in his early years, he played for Meath and Leix. Later he became associated with the administrative side in Leix, and his work during ten years under difficult conditions has been uniformly successful.

Mr. Martin O'Neill, secretary to the Leinster Council, is a versatile man. He first came under notice with Wexford footballers, but his handball talent quickly found an outlet. Favouring the rubber ball, he won county and provincial titles.

Munster has two men in official capacities—Messrs. Sean McCarthy, Cork, as chairman, and his namesake, of Tralee, as secretary. Both have devoted many years to Gaelic games. The Munster figures, whilst not showing the same progress in affiliations and revenue as Leinster, has a record of more field successes. Munster hold both senior titles. Kerry and Cork are senior champions in football and hurling respectively, and the junior hurling title is also theirs, while Kerry minors secured the football honours.

The Railway Cup matches on March 17th will find Munster eager for fresh honours, but Leinster's football success at Drogheda suggests another close struggle. The hurling semi-final at Birr on February 28th may bring a new team into the final. Galway are in a strong position with extern hurlers declaring for them, and the ground at Birr suits them. Gill, Finn, Donnelly and Donoghue are available, and their success against Tipperary in the National League was the result of close local organisation. Leinster's team has Kilkenny as a basis, and it will be at full strength.

TABLE TENNIS.

FREE STATE SIDE BEATEN IN BELFAST.

A Free State team visited Belfast for the first time last night, when they met a northern Ireland side, the Northern players winning by six matches to three.

Several of the visiting players are taking part in the Ulster Championships to-day. Details:—

Singles—S. W. Smyth (N.) beat J. Drum—21-12, 21-9; J. McKimm (N.) beat C. A. Kemp—21-5, 21-7; W. T. Orr (N.) beat H. MacDougall—21-21, 21-16, 23-21; D. Hennessey beat W. T. Spence (N.)—21-15, 21-14; E. Hobson (N.) beat J. Wardle—23-21, 21-18; E. Smith (F.S.) beat W. Maxwell (N.)—21-13, 21-15.

Doubles—Spencer and Maxwell (N.) beat Hennessey and Smith—21-18, 21-14; J. Drum and Orr (F.S.) beat Smyth and Orson—23-25, 21-13, 21-17. Hobson and McKimm (N.) beat Smith and McDougall—21-17, 21-23, 21-19.

SQUASH RACKETS.

HAMILTON WINS THE IRISH TITLE.

GREAT DISPLAY AGAINST G. K. PILKINGTON.

The first All-Ireland Squash Rackets Championship, which has been played at the Fitzwilliam L.T.C., Dublin, during the past ten days, was concluded last evening. In accordance with expectations, Arthur Hamilton had the distinction of winning the championship, beating G. K. Pilkington in last evening's final with great ease, the match only running to three short games.

The loser is a master of courtcraft, and he played some beautiful shots, but he must have trivial difficulty in finding like twenty years to his young opponent, and the handicap was one-sided. Hamilton, who had him badly beaten for speed has never shown greater dash. Attempts to slow up the game were unavailing, and he was equally prepared for every move. The new champion proved clearly that he stands out amongst Irish players, and his performances when he has met cross-Channel exponents stamp him as really first-class. He has attained international honours at badminton, and he is a son of the famous Irish sportsman, Bud Hamilton, who was himself a famous rackets player, and who, with his brother, made history in Irish sport of the previous generation.

CHAMPIONSHIP OF IRELAND—FINAL.

A. Hamilton beat G. K. Pilkington—9-3, 9-3, 9-5.

HANDICAP CLASS "B"—FINAL.

Judge Davitt (plus 3) beat B. Coster (plus 2)—10-9, 9-5, 10-8.

HANDICAP CLASS "A"—SEMI-FINAL.

MOTOR CYCLING.

PATLAND CUP TRIAL TO-DAY.

Although the status of a championship has never been claimed for it, the Patland Cup trial of the Leinster Club has come to be regarded as the chief event of the rough-riding type in Ireland. To-day's competition for the trophy marks the commencement of a new series, as last year Stanley Woods made the cup his own by a third win. He re-presented it to the club as a perpetual trophy, and after ten years it starts on a new history.

The route of the trial has not been made public; but, as the start will be from the Yellow House at Rathfarnham, it may be presumed it will embrace most of the country used in previous trials for the trophy. It will consist of a circuit of about twelve miles, which will be covered three times, but in order to equalise the chances of the visiting and home competitors, the first round will not be observed. The first rider will be despatched at 2.45 o'clock.

Belfast is sending a strong representation to the event, eleven of the twenty-six competitors being North of Ireland men. They include teams of three from the Ulster and Lisburn Clubs, and a team of five from the Knock Club. The remaining entries include seven from the Leinster Club, three from Cork, two each from the Dublin and District, and one from the Tallaght Club.

Most of the visiting competitors have accepted invitations to be present at the annual dinner of the Dublin and District Club, which will be held in the Dolphin Hotel this evening.

ASSOCIATION FOOTBALL.

OPENING SHIELD GAMES.

STIFF TASK FOR DOLPHIN AT DUNDALK.

THERE will be a cessation to the interesting Cup and League struggles this week-end, when the Free State Shield competition will be commenced. Waterford won the Shield in their first season of Free State football last season, and should make a winning start on this occasion, when they entertain St. James's Gate to-morrow. The latter have not the speed in defence to hold the fast Waterford forwards.

The only match to-day is between Bohemians and Shelbourne, at Dalymount Park. Bohemians have won both this season's League games, but Shelbourne's Cup progress has shown that the side is better than its League record. A new inside right, Patterson, of Southport, has been signed, and, with Howieson back at inside left, the attack should be distinctly dangerous. The defence and halves have always been strong, and the side should give Bohemians a close match. Shelbourne's strength in attack will, in my opinion, bring them an opening victory in the Shield.

Of the five matches to-morrow only two are being played in Dublin. Brideville meet Bray Unknowns at Harold's Cross, and the latter have won both games this season. They have been playing well lately, and, with their defence showing improved form, they should gain their third success over Brideville. The other match in Dublin should provide an easy win for Shamrock Rovers over Jacobs at Rutland avenue.

Of the three provincial matches to-morrow, easily the most interesting is the meeting of Dundalk and Dolphin. The latter, at full strength, have become the most difficult side to beat in the Free State, for their defence has tightened up, thanks to the great improvement in the play of Nisbet and Power, while their halves and forwards are as clever as ever. Dundalk are still a hard side to beat on their own ground, but it would not surprise me to see Dolphin lower their colours to-morrow. However difficult a side they are to beat at Crumlin, St. James's Gate are not a good side away from home, and Cork should have little difficulty in disposing of them at the Mardyke.

CORK'S PROTEST DISMISSED.

The protest by Cork against Dolphin being awarded the Free State Cup-tie played recently at Harold's Cross, on the ground that the goal which gave Dolphin victory was not a legitimate one, was dismissed by the Protests and Appeals' Committee of the Free State F.A. last night.

The decision was made under Law 13, which states that the referee has sole control of the game, and there can be no appeal from his rulings on questions of fact.

PEACE CONFERENCE TO-DAY.

Representatives of the I.F.A., Ltd., will meet a delegation of the F.A. of the Irish Free State in Dublin this evening, when a further effort will be made to solve the problems that have had such a damaging effect on Irish football, so far as international matches are concerned, during the last ten years.

In 1921 the clubs of the Leinster F.A., with some other clubs in the Free State, broke away from the Irish F.A. and formed what was known as the Football Association of Ireland. In October, 1923, following the Liverpool conference, the new body received Dominion status, and changed its name to the F.A. of the Irish Free State.

Since then the two bodies—North and South—have worked in complete separation, despite a number of efforts to secure an amicable understanding.

Left on its own resources, the Free State body has grown to a remarkable extent, and in a decade the number of clubs under its control has increased from, roughly, 100 to more than 500.

The purpose of this evening's meeting will be to bring about at least a partial fusion of the two bodies.

HOCKEY.

NAAS'S IRISH CUP TEST.

INTERESTING MILLS' CUP-TIES IN DUBLIN.

(By Our Special Correspondent.)

THE Leinster semi-final of the Irish Cup, which was delayed by the long-drawn-out battles between Naas and Kingstown Grammar School, will be played off to-day, when Naas meet Three Rock Rovers at Naas. The home team's superior speed in attack, combined with their sound defence, should enable them to win. Rovers have probably the best half-back line in Leinster, but their forwards hardly have sufficient speed to beat the Naas backs.

Two of the four second round ties in the Mills Cup will also be decided, Dublin University meeting Avoca School and Railway Union entertaining Kingstown Grammar School. In each case the home team should win, for Trinity should be too fast in attack and sound in defence for Avoca; while the Railway defence will hold the Grammar School forwards, and their attack should get sufficient chances to bring them through. One Senior League match will be played, in which Pembroke Wanderers should go to the top of the League by beating National Bank. They have, however, played two more matches than Monkstown.

INTERNATIONAL BOARD.

That the International Hockey Board would meet on May 7 for the first time for three years was announced at a Council meeting of the Hockey Association in London yesterday. A difference arose over the representation of the countries on the board, on which England had a superior voting power, but everything has been satisfactorily arranged.

BOXING.

OXFORD THE CHAMPIONS.

DUBLIN UNIVERSITY LOSE TITLE BY THREE POINTS.

OXFORD UNIV., 23 POINTS; DUBLIN UNIV., 20.

ONE of the fifty-eight competitors in the Universities' and Hospitals' Championships in London yesterday was H. G. Owen-Smith, a South African Test cricketer, representing Oxford University. In view of the large number of entries the preliminary contests were decided at St. Bride's Institute, London, early in the day, and the final stages at the Stadium Club, Holborn, London, later. Owen-Smith, who was in the South African cricket team in 1929 and who played for Oxford in the Inter-Varsity match last year, won his preliminary heat in the welter-weights easily, the referee intervening with G. J. Ambrose (London University) well beaten.

J. C. Taylor, the only Dublin University representative in the middle-weights, was beaten in the first series by C. D. A. Pullen, an Oxford University boxing Blue. The men provided a fine fight, in which there was a good deal of heavy hitting, but little polished boxing. The Oxford man carried the more powerful punch, and his right counters often hurt the Irishman.

B. N. Eed, of Queen's University, Belfast, in defeating M. W. Harvey, St. Bart's Hospital, on points in the first series of the light-weights, was particularly aggressive throughout, but he took numerous risks. In the first round he was badly shaken by a right swing to the jaw, but thereafter he outpointed the hospital boxer, who, tiring in the closing rounds, took many punches to the face. A right hook hurt Harvey in the last round.

BLAKE UNLUCKY.

J. J. Blake, Dublin University, was rather unfortunate to lose the decision against F. H. Morgan, Cardiff, in the first series of the light-weights, the Welshman winning on the referee's casting vote. Morgan was the more aggressive fighter, but he did not land with the same precision as Blake, whose left dominated the early exchanges. In the second round Blake connected with a right swing, and followed immediately with a fine left to the body. Morgan, however, levelled matters in the third and last round, scoring with his right to the head and body.

D. J. Coveney, of University College, Dublin, the holder of the feather-weight title, had to fight very hard to get through his preliminary bout against R. M. Alford, St. Thomas's Hospital, and the referee was called upon to give his decision. Coveney boxed on defensive lines practically throughout, but he made full use of his left hand in the later stages of the bout. Alford hit freely with both hands to the head and body, but he was outpointed in the last round by a more polished boxer.

MITCHELL AND DOYLE WIN QUICKLY.

J. H. Mitchell, Dublin University, was altogether too good for H. S. Samuel, London University, whom he beat in two rounds in the preliminaries of the feather-weights. In the first round Samuel was down four times from rights, and he was completely outclassed. Mitchell punched with much force, and, though he was unable to land a really decisive punch, he was far too strong for Samuel, and the referee intervened after the Londoner had been floored in the second round.

B. A. Doyle, Dublin University, scored an even quicker win in the first series of the bantam-weights, the referee stopping his fight with K. Waring, Liverpool, in the first round. In the minute's boxing Doyle hit almost at will. He drove Waring to the ropes, and several rights and lefts to the face had the Liverpool boxer well beaten.

BOWE'S NARROW DEFEAT.

M. Bowe, of U.C.D., opposed C. A. Hodges, St. Thomas's Hospital, the holder, in the second series of the middle-weights, and he did tolerably well to extend the champion to the full distance. There was a good deal of close quarter work, and the clinching brought a reprimand from the referee. Hodges tried repeatedly to score with his left hook, and in the third he connected to the head, but, apart from this blow, he was quite unable to disturb the Irishman, who was beaten by a very narrow margin of points.

In the first series of the light-weights C. Stanford, University College, Dublin, was too strong for A. Thorne, Oxford University, and after he had administered severe punishment he gained the verdict on points.

H. Stuart-Barber, Dublin University, who beat E. M. Martin, Bristol University, in the second round of the second series of the welters, the referee intervening, gave a fine display of forceful fighting.

W. M. McClenaghan, Queen's University, Belfast, had an exciting fight with R. Oliver, Reading University, before winning on points in the second series of the welter-weights. The Irishman's uppercuts reached Oliver's jaw on several occasions, and he generally had the better of a gruelling contest. J. Stafford, U.C.D., won very easily from A. Jenkin, London University, in the first series of the fly-weights. He landed two rights to the head and a left hook to the jaw in the third stage, after having all the better of matters, and Jenkin, well beaten, retired.

STANFORD'S FORCEFUL FIGHTING.

Stanford, in defeating F. H. Morgan, Cardiff, in the second series of the light-weights, boxed very well. To the time the referee stopped the fight in the third round the Irishman did all the forcing, his two-handed attacks proving too much for Morgan, who fought pluckily, but was well beaten when a right to the jaw floored him.

In the second series of the light-weights Eed defeated J. H. Bethell, Liverpool University, on points in a closely contested bout. The Irish boxer's more accurate left-hand hitting earned him the decision, his left hook in particular scoring freely in the closing stages.

THE FINALS.

In the final of the bantam-weights Doyle opposed last year's winner, Rees, and had an easy task, the fight being stopped in the first round, after he had dealt out terrific punishment. Graham retained his title by beating Thesiger in the final of the light-heavy weights. He always threatened to bring off a knock-out with either hand, but the Dark Blue was very quick on his feet. Stanford hit far too hard for Mayer in the final of the light-weights. He got in some heavy swings on the break-away from the clinches, and Mayer was so badly distressed at the end of the second round that the referee stopped the fight.

The defeat of Coveney in the semi-final of the feathers was the surprise of the championships, but Baskin put up a remarkable display. There was, however, very little in it, but Baskin was readily beaten by Mitchell in the final, the fight being stopped in the first round.

Anderson won the first round of the heavy-weights well against his Oxford opponent, but permitted the latter to get too much to close quarters at the later stages, and lost on points.

JACK DEMPSEY BEATEN.

Jack Dempsey, the Manassa Mauler," and former heavy-weight champion of the world, had his hopes of making a "come-back" checked at Chicago yesterday (Friday), when, before a crowd of 23,500 spectators, he lost the newspaper decision to King Levinsky in a four-round bout. The fighting was furious, with Levinsky doing most of the attacking. He got home some good hard blows, while Dempsey continually weaved and bobbed, but appeared unable to hurt Levinsky, to whom the crowd, who fully agreed with the decision, gave an ovation at the end.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND NOTES.

TONE AND COMMENT

DUBLIN UNCERTAIN.

BANK STOCK WEAK.

There was an uncertain tone in the Dublin Stock Market yesterday. This was reflected in the fall below par of both the First and Second National Loans and a sharp decline of 6 points in Bank of Ireland Stock. There was no doubt about the appreciation in British Funds, which are once more coming into their own on the improved financial position of Great Britain. Land Bonds shared to a small extent in the rise, which in the case of Funding Loan amounted to 1⅛. The fall in Bank Stock has already been noted. Munster and Leinster rose to 5½ and Westminster to 62s.

Rails were weaker, with Northern Ord. and Guaranteed and Southern Pref. all showing falls of a point or more.

Guinness units were quite strong, and added eighteen pence to 80s. 6d. In the same group Dublin Distillers "A" Shares rose 5d to 1s. 6d.

Stagnation again ruled among the Industrials so far as activity was concerned, but prices were all better. Courtauld's final dividend was regarded as better than might have been expected, and the shares rose to 32s. 6d. Imperial Tobacco and Unilevers were also dealt in at higher prices, while Unilever (N.V.) was quite strong. "Shells," not recently dealt in, rose 5s. 6d. to 45s., and "Chartered" turned buoyant at 18s. 9d.

LONDON CHEERFUL.

WAR LOAN FIVES OVER PAR.

Cheerful conditions again prevailed the majority of sections in the London Stock Markets yesterday, and another long list of more or less appreciable improvements was returned at the close. Here and there selected issues came in for good attention, and prices quickly responded. Dull spots were not entirely lacking, however, though, apart from British Rails, which presented an exceptionally weak appearance, the adverse movements were not of any great consequence. No dividend is being paid on the London and North-Eastern Railway Company's 5 per cent. Preferred Ordinary Stock, against 4 per cent. last year. The distribution on the 4 per cent. Second Preference Stock is to be only 1 per cent. Thus all the company's prior charge issues fall out of the trustee list. Previously they had been Chancery stocks. The announcement fulfilled the most pessimistic expectations, and there was a severe decline in all the company's issues after it was made. British Funds presented a strong appearance, and quotations were put forward smartly all round. War Loan Fives were especially good, the quotation finishing at 100⅛, leaving them ⅛ higher on the day, after dealings at a figure in excess of this level. India stocks were another firm market, but Australians were content to repeat their previous levels. There was not a great deal of interest passing in Foreign Government stocks, and, following Thursday's advance, values went back the turn. Chinese issues were lowered rather sharply, as were Japanese, while German Sevens finished ¼ easier. French Loans, on the other hand, strengthened fractionally, and Greek and Poland Sevens went better. As mentioned above, British Rails became flat, following the L.N.E.R. announcement, and all the leaders were put lower. Among North-Easterns the 4 per cent. First and Second Preferences were 2½ and 5 points lower respectively, while the Deferred Ordinary slumped to 4, and the 5 per cent. Preferred Ordinary closed no better than 9. Metropolitan Consolidated and District exceptionally were a point and 2 points better, while Underground Ordinary finished 3d. dearer. The Industrial markets, as a whole, were more cheerful than for some days, and appreciable advances were marked in several directions. The Trans-Atlantic issues were assisted by the growing confidence expressed on Wall street, and strengthened all round, while Banks and Insurance shares improved with the gilt-edged section. Textiles showed a firmer trend, and Electrical issues were marked better, while a number of the Miscellaneous Industrials stiffened. Elsewhere Oils continued the improvement noticeable in the late hours of Thursday; and Mines generally displayed a firm front, though business was rather quieter. Rather easier conditions ruled in the "street," and values receded in several directions.

THE INDUSTRIAL MARKET.

BREWERIES FAVOURED.

Cheerful conditions again pervaded all sections of the Industrial Market yesterday. The growing confidence of Wall street assisted sentiment on this side, and although the Trans-Atlantic favourites finished below the best, some satisfactory gains were recorded. Home issues came in for renewed attention. Breweries were good and Dunlops were a better market.

Although the best prices were not held at the close, owing to profit-taking, the Trans-Atlantic counters showed some satisfactory gains on balance. United States Steel touched 75⅜ at one time, eventually finishing with a net gain of 5 at 74.

Cables and Wireless stocks seemed uncertain in their movements and finished on the dull side.

Apart from Austins, which receded 9d. to 24s., Motor shares presented a firm front. Thomas Tilling continued in the ascendant, the old shares closing at 56s. and the new at 54s. Fords were 1s. better at 31s.

A good turnover was reported among Breweries, and several satisfactory gains were recorded. Benskins rose 1s. 6d. to 28s. 6d., with Guinness marked 1s. 3d. higher at 81s. Allsopps strengthened to 20s. 3d., Bass to 50s., Distillers to 44s. 3d., and Watney Deferred to 41s. 6d.

Investment support was forthcoming for "Imps," which finished ⅛ better at 3½, while Gallahers further improved to the extent of 1s. 3d. to 31s. 10½d. Carreras "A" were quietly maintained at 3½.

Textiles generally were well maintained. J. and P. Coats finished buyers at 42s. 1½d., Bleachers at 11s. 4½d., and Bradford Dyers at 17s.

Although the market expressed some disappointment at the big reduction in the Courtauld's profits, the dividend proved up to expectations, and the shares closed 3d. harder at 32s. 1½d., after being 32s. 6d.

J. Barker Ords. met with good inquiry following the publication of the annual results, and left off with a gain of 2s. 6d. at 60s.

In the Catering and Provision groups, J. Lyons Ords. strengthened ⅛ to 4½, as did Lovell and Christmas to ¼ and Unilever N.V. to 1⅞.

Banking and Insurance descriptions again reflected the upward trend of the Funds.

Slight improvements were marked in Kreuger and Toll at 10½ and in Swedish Match at 6½ in the course of a moderate turnover.

The recent interest in Milling issues continued, with Spillers closing a further 9d. to the good at 35s. 4½d. and the Defd. the turn harder at 17s. 4½d., while Associated Flour Millers were bought up to 14s. In the course of a fairly substantial turnover, most of the leading home counters moved to higher levels.

OIL SHARES HIGHER.

Although dealers in the Oil share market reported very little increase in the volume of transactions yesterday, cheerful conditions prevailed, and an all-round advance in quotations occurred, which was once more particularly pronounced among international counters. Advices received overnight from New York were encouraging, higher prices coming over for most of the leading American Oil stocks. Moreover, New York came in firm in the afternoon, accepting the higher prices quoted here. The strength which developed in international counters was attributable to a continuance of continental demand, accompanied by purchases on American account. Local business failed to expand to any appreciable extent, but there were no sellers, and higher prices ruled at the end.

RUBBER SHARES IDLE.

The Rubber share market was again almost entirely neglected yesterday, and rubber values rallied and finished the turn firmer. Spot sold from 2⅛d. to 2⅛d. per pound, while April to June fetched 2⅛d. and 2⅛d. per pound, and July to September 2⅛d., 2⅛d. and 2⅛d. per pound. It is expected that the London stocks of rubber on Monday next will show a decrease of some 850 tons, whilst Liverpool stocks may be 350 tons lower.

The estimate showed 1d. in the £ increase in Enniskillen, 10d. increase in Lisnaskea, and 4d. decrease in Irvinestown rural districts.

Prison for Thief.—At Waterford Court yesterday an Army reservist, William Keane, was sent to jail for 21 days. Keane, who is a native of Mooncoin, was charged with breaking and entering the shop of James Walsh, Templedrum, near Carrick-on-Suir, and stealing a quantity of shirts, tinned goods, and sweets. District Justice MacCabe said that there were first offenders and first offenders. Keane was not satisfied with telling a pack of lies, but got a girl to back him up with another pack of lies.

To Leave the Country.—At Waterford a coal carrier, John Coady, Clogga, Co. Kilkenny, was charged with the larceny of 15 cwt. of coal between Waterford and Tramore. The case was partly heard at a previous Court, when it was stated in evidence that he had been four times previously convicted, and on that occasion the Justice adjourned the case to consider what sentence he would impose. Yesterday it was pleaded that the defendant's father would send him to Canada within a month. The case was adjourned for four weeks to enable the defendant to leave the country. District Justice MacCabe said that he hoped the defendant would leave the country for his country's good.

Armagh) Rural Council a letter was received from the Northern Ministry of Home Affairs stating that they were prepared to approve the Tandragee Urban Council and the Tandragee Rural Council borrowing jointly the sum of £7,600, of which the Urban Council was to be responsible for the sum of £5,600 and the Rural Council £2,000, the period of the repayment of the loan to be fifty years. Interesting Prosecution.—At Coleraine yesterday the Customs and Excise authorities summoned John P. Shanaghan, Craigie Park, Belfast, for carrying on the business of a hawker without a licence. Twenty-three others, all of Belfast, were similarly summoned. The case for the prosecution was that the defendant each Saturday brought from Belfast drapery goods which he sold in "The Shambles," Coleraine. It was contended that the defendant did not reside or usually carry on business in Coleraine, and, therefore, came within the definition of "a hawker." Counsel for the defence said that the place where the goods were offered for sale had been rented by the year by the North of Ireland Market Traders' Association, who sub-let to Shanaghan and other members of that body. No others were entitled to do business at the place. There was no obligation on them to use the place on one day per week only, and it was a branch of the defendant's Belfast business. It was the place where they usually carried on business. The magistrates imposed a mitigated penalty of 30s., and, as notice of appeal was given, they adjourned the other cases until next May.

SAINT PATRICKSTIDE.

(Circular issued to Clergy by Archbishop of Dublin.)

UNITED DIOCESE OF DUBLIN AND GLENDALOUGH AND KILDARE.

SAINT PATRICKSTIDE, 1932.

FROM THE ARCHBISHOP OF DUBLIN.

I offer the following suggestions to the clergy of the diocese in connection with the Commemoration of the Coming of Saint Patrick. Reference is made therein to the special Form of Prayer, consisting of (i) Litany, (ii) Prayers and Thanksgivings put forth by the Archbishops and Bishops of the Church of Ireland, of which I send a copy herewith.

I.—SUNDAYS, MARCH 6th and MARCH 27th.

One or more Collects, with their Biddings, from Part II. might be used as desired after the Third Collect at Morning or Evening Prayer. This might also be done once or twice a month till after the Church Conference in October.

II.—MARCH 13th to MARCH 20th.

(a) Sunday, March 13th, and Sunday, March 20th.

At Morning Service the Special Litany might be used either after the Third Collect, or, if there is Holy Communion, according to the permission given in Paragraph iii of the "General Directions for Publick Worship," preceding the order for Morning Prayer.

At Evening Service the Special Litany may take the place of the Prayers after the Third Collect, or the minister may, at his discretion, introduce before the Prayer of St. Chrysostom some of the Prayers and Thanksgivings, with Biddings, from Part II.

The Rubric governing the use of "Prayers and Thanksgivings" (Book of Common Prayer, Contents, No. 11) may be taken as applying to the Frayers and Thanksgivings taken from Part II. on March 13th and 20th.

(b) March 14th, 15th and 16th.

I suggest that, where circumstances allow, there should be Holy Communion daily, at an early hour (if practicable). If time permits, the Communion Office might be preceded by the Special Litany.

On these days the Collect, etc., of Saint Patrick's Day may be used, and when the Special Litany precedes the Communion Office, advantage may be taken of the permission granted in the Fourth Rubric at the end of the Communion Office.

(c) Saint Patrick's Day.

I hope that in every parish, without exception, a strong effort will be made to have a Corporate Parish Communion, at some reasonably early hour (say 9 or 9.30), so that the people may be enabled to observe the day and still have much of the morning free.

As to the form of Service, I suggest Special Litany (Part I.), followed by the Communion Office. A lengthy order of Service should be avoided, but, if it is desired to use the Order for Morning Prayer, advantage may be taken of Paragraphs iii and/or vii. in "General Directions for Publick Worship."

Where it is possible only to have an Evening Service, Paragraph vii. of the "General Directions" might be applied, while the Special Litany or certain of the Frayers and Thanksgivings, with Biddings, from Part II. might be used after the Third Collect.

The Incumbent will decide whether a sermon is to be preached on March 17th. But I hope greatly that a sermon, or sermons, will be preached in every parish during the Octave, March 13th-20th, dealing with the special topics associated with the Commemoration.

I hope also that attention will be given to the subject at Services for children. A good beginning will have been made if even only a few leading historical facts in Saint Patrick's life have been impressed on their memory.

JOHN DUBLIN.

February 14th, 1932.

N.B.—Copies of the Special Form of Prayer (which I hope will be freely distributed in the pews) may be had from the Church of Ireland Printing Company, 61 Middle Abbey street, Dublin.

The parishes of Castlemagner, Union of Kilmeague, Union of Kilflynn and Dingle, are vacant.

The Rev. J. R. McDonald, Incumbent of Donaghcloney, has been nominated to the Incumbency of St. Matthew's, Belfast, in succession to Canon Walker.

The Rev. Canon J. W. MacQuaid has been appointed representative Canon of St. Patrick's Cathedral by the Bishop of Derry.

The Rev. W. Kelly has been instituted to the benefice of Drumgoon (Cootehill) by the Bishop of Kilmore.

A chapel of ease for the parishioners of Swanlinbar who live remote from the parish church has been consecrated by the Bishop of Kilmore under the name of the Church of St. Paul.

The Rev. C. P. Fisher has undertaken the curacy-in-charge of Newbridge.

The Rev. A. Hobson, Incumbent of Dingle, has been nominated to the Incumbency of Innishannon U., Diocese of Cork.

A Conference of Youth will be held in St. Finn Barr's Schoolhouse, Cork, on March 31st-April 1st. The following papers will be read and discussed:—"What is God like?" by Mr. E. G. Daunt; "What is meant by Religion?" by Mr. Martin Lord; "What are God's great needs in the world to-day?" by the Rev. C. J. Tyndall; "In what ways can God use youth to respond to His needs in the world to-day?" by Miss Phyllis Sheppard. The Rev. C. J. Tyndall will preach at Youth Services in St. Luke's (11.30 a.m.) and the Cathedral (7 p.m.) on April 3rd.

The Marquis of Waterford has carved and presented a credence table to Portlaw Parish Church.

IVEAGH TRUST REPORT.

The Trustees have issued their report for the year ending 31st December, 1931. The demand for accommodation in Iveagh House was not so large as in some former years. There are in all 608 beds, and the average number of lodgers in 1931 was 440.41 per night; the percentage of actual to possible letting being 86.69.

The Iveagh Play Centre contains eleven class rooms and three large halls for drill and entertainments, etc. It is open five evenings and one morning each week, except during holidays, for children between the ages of 3 and 14. The total attendances for 1931 were 168,429 on 210 days—an average of 802.042 per day. In order that the building may be utilised as fully as possible, the late Lord Iveagh endowed it with a gift of £10,000. The number of attendances at the public baths in Bride road (exclusive of the competitors and spectators at the galas) were 37,735. The tenement buildings belonging to the Trust afford accommodation for 588 families, and they continue to let well. The average weekly rent per room, inclusive of rates, and covering chimney sweeping and the use of Venetian blinds, is 2s. 5d. The Trustees have continued during the year the arrangements made in 1916, whereby the tenants in the Kevin street dwellings can obtain coal in small quantities practically at cost price. On the 31st of December, 1931, there were 2,313 persons living in the tenement dwellings. There were during the year 41 births and 28 deaths; the birth-rate was 17.72 per 1,000 and the death-rate, including six deaths in hospitals, was 12.10 per 1,000. On the Crumlin road site 118 cottage dwellings and a shop, with living quarters, are now occupied.

The request of Lord Baden-Powell that Scottish Rover Scouts should abandon the balmoral in favour of the Scout hat for the sake of world uniformity in head-dress, and, if need be, also stop wearing the kilt, has created a controversy among Scouts throughout Scotland. A special meeting of Rover leaders will be held in Glasgow to discuss the matter.

BOOKS OF THE WEEK.

THE "DARIEN COMPANY."

The Company of Scotland. By George Pratt Nish, D.Litt., F.E.I.S. London: Scribner's. 12/6 net.

DR. NISH tells us that originally he planned to write this volume as a sequel to his monograph "Scottish Colonial Schemes, 1620-1686," but that the story of the Company of Scotland worked itself into a complete story. Thus what started as a study in Scottish economic and political history, is now the drama of that unlucky company, all of whose ventures to four continents, save one, were doomed to failure.

The Company of Scotland, or the "Darien Company," as it was erroneously designated later, appended to its title, "Trading to Africa and the Indies," but it is from two expeditions to the Isthmus of Panama that its fame has sprung. The news of the proposed Scottish settlement in Panama created consternation in the Spanish Court and among the governors of the Spanish provinces in North and South America, for whom the possibilities of Scottish aggression seemed limitless. The Scots also found an enemy in Sir William Beeston, Governor of Jamaica. To Beeston the coming of the Scots meant a weakening of his own colony; for, as he declared to the Council of Trade in reporting the arrival of the Scots at Darien: "If they settle there and are healthy, the noise of gold (of which there is great plenty in those parts) will carry away all our debtors, servants and ordinary people in the hope of mending their fortunes, and will much weaken the little strength we have." He also wrote to the Governor of Carthagena repudiating, on behalf of England, any responsibility for the Scottish settlement.

Yet, however threatening may have been the attitude of the English and Spanish governors in the New World, the abandonment of the settlement was caused mainly by sickness and loneliness, by dissension and by disloyalty among their leaders. "The cause of their leaving Darien was, as they say, for want of provisions and fresh supplies from Scotland. Besides, they add that they never had so much as one letter or scratch of the pen from the Company all the time they were a standing colony." The more active opposition of the Spaniards, coupled with the usual starvation and sickness, brought the second expedition to a like fate.

Of the Company's activities in Africa and the Indies, Dr. Nish tells four tales of four ships, only one of which, the African Merchant, met with success.

King William did something to help the Scots by passing a bill for encouraging trade, but it remained for the Union of Scotland and England in 1707 to give the now exhausted country an equal opportunity. Dr. Nish's book is a revelation of the economic jealousy that existed between the English merchants and their competitors.

WAR AS A DISEASE.

They That Take the Sword. By Esmé Wingfield-Stratford, D.Sc., M.A., F.R.Hist.Soc. London: Routledge. 12/6 net.

EXPRESSED briefly, Dr. Wingfield-Stratford's thesis is to show that war constitutes a disease of civilisation, and that a stage will be reached when further conflict may mean the extinction of mankind. He believes that the only way by which this disaster may be avoided requires a change of spirit; for the present policy of setting up leagues for peace and signing treaties does not provide adequate safeguards. In support of these views the author traces the history of war in all its forms from the earliest period to our own time, and describes how the military mind and machine have been evolved. Final chapters stress the need of a spiritual revolution "to make the world safe for science and science safe for the world." No doubt, if such a revolution were to take place, the cessation of warfare is only one of the many benefits that would follow; but it is not clear exactly what will inspire such a desirable and universal change of heart.

The author's scholarship and sincerity are beyond question, and any book professing to show how war may be abolished ought to receive consideration. The work before us, however, tends to lose interest by reason of its somewhat moralising style

A POLITICAL FANTASY.

Peter Public. By the Hon. Member for X. London: Cape. 5/- net.

MANY who read this play will ask themselves: "Who is the Honourable Member for X?" Having run through all the "possibles" and "probables," we are inclined to the belief that the author must be G.B.S.; but it must be left to time to decide whether we are right or wrong.

The publishers call "Peter Public" the "hush hush" play of the year, and certainly it is a play to be read rather than to be produced. "Political extravaganza" is a vague classification; yet it is impossible to arrive at a nearer description. The work is really an extravagant fantasy, in which all the public bodies are represented by a single person apiece. Peter Public represents the public whole and entire. He looks very foolish; is rather deaf, and rather short-sighted; but he is not so foolish as he looks.

The author in his note say: "This play is a lesson for the very wise, and the very foolish, about pushing Public faster than his Common Sense can keep up with. Recent events in political, economic and social quarters have done a lot to make this play much more pertinent to the present than the author intends. But that cannot be helped now!"

No truer description of "Peter Public" can be found. The dialogue is sparkling, and the play really delivers a message.

RECENT FICTION.

A Day's Tale. By Lewis Gibbs. Dent. 7/6 net.
The Pilgrim Soul. By Ursula Bloom. Hutchinson. 7/6 net.
The Windmill on the Dune. By Mary Waller. Sampson Low. 7/6 net.
Cambodian Quest. By Robert J. Casey. Mathews and Marrot. 7/6 net.

A WRITER must possess a good deal of skill to enable him to describe minutely one remarkable day in the lives of commonplace folk, and to make it seem interesting to an outsider. Mr. Gibbs has the necessary skill. He plays fair; and, except in the case of a master at Ron Crompton's school, he does not choose a red-letter day marked by disaster or by any particularly joyful occurrence. This author is like a juggler; he keeps a large number of characters in the air at the same time. While we watch one of them we are aware of the others in the background, until we find that our thoughts are concentrated now upon someone else. From the breaking of a foggy morning in a London suburb to the wet midnight that followed after some sixteen hours, things keep on happening very much as they happen on most days, when we scarcely notice them. This is a first novel, and it is a very able work.

* * * *

The "Pilgrim Soul" of a Victorian heroine is, as a rule, well hidden. Emily Vane, the daughter of a country doctor, scarcely knew that she possessed such a thing; certainly her very unpleasant mother did not help it to expand. Emily's daughter, Judy, believed, in her turn, that everything ought to be quite open and above board; the European War, with its many revelations, caused her to feel this still more strongly. In the end the pilgrim soul of Emily has its way, and it sweeps aside all barriers. Miss Ursula Bloom describes, very entertainingly, the happenings that bring about such a belated revolt.

* * * *

Mary Waller dedicates her book, "The Windmill on the Dune," to the sons and daughters of the Cape—that is, of Cape Cod. Through the whole story her love of this sandy peninsula is like a sustained and harmonious pedal note in a piece of organ music; a quiet piece, without any flourishes. Even when she writes of Brittany, and of the Island of Sein, to which the hero goes, it is really of Cape Cod that she is thinking; constantly, the two places are being compared in her mind. Everyone who loves the sea, and likes to feel the thin drift of spray above the sand hills, will enjoy this book. The writer knows and loves the places which she describes, and her story rings true.

* * * *

Mr. Casey's stirring tale of mistaken identity and of the many adventures that lie in wait for Nance Abbot, when she engages, at the last moment, the berth previously engaged by Alysia Moore, is exciting enough for anyone. In a state of utter bewilderment, Nance finds herself involved in murder and in kidnappings, in beatings and in knife-throwings, just as soon as she arrives at Saigon, on the Pacific coast. She has no clue to the reason for the very unwelcome attentions which she attracts, and, altogether, she has an uneasy time. After a great deal of excitement, she learns that the girl whose place she took on the boat was supposed to know the exact location of the hidden treasure that is being sought so eagerly, and that she herself is supposed to be Alysia Moore. This yarn is well told, and it is full of thrills.

Death Answers the Bell. By Valentine Williams. Hodder and Stoughton. 7/6 net.
Spears Against Us. By Cecil Roberts. Hutchinson and Co. 7/6 net.

In "Death Answers the Bell" Mr. Valentine Williams has written as entertaining a "thriller" as his mastery of the craft has ever allowed him to write. "Death Answers the Bell" is not so much a mystery out of the ordinary as a mystery that follows the ordinary course of its kind, but follows it extremely well. The conventional ingredients are there: the body, distilling streams of blood; fingerprints, suspects galore, and the usual retinue of professional and amateur detectives.

Mr. Williams's virtue is that he contrives to blend his ingredients into something more than a mathematical exercise. The reader is not compelled to turn back every few pages in order to ascertain whether the murderer's train arrived at 11.25 or 11.40—the sort of thing which is the death of most mystery stories that do not rely on action for their development. His plot is restful, and the dénouement, though anything but simple, is decently and clearly logical. Furthermore, he manages to instil some life into his characters, and very few English writers of "thrillers," now that Edgar Wallace has gone, possess that gift. "Death Answers the Bell"—it is, incidentally, rather longer than the usual story of its type—is one of the best books of its kind that we have read for a long while.

* * * *

This story evolves itself through the years of the War and the year immediately preceding it. The characters are the members of an Austrian and an English family, but the scene of events is almost exclusively in Austria. There is, however, a picture of war-time London and another of the Austrian campaign in the mountains of Italy. The fate of the Edelsteins, the Austrian family, is depicted in post-war Vienna: the concluding chapter deals with the feeding of starving Austrians by the British.

Although the author shifts his sympathy with various characters, he tends to look at developments mostly through the eyes of Ian, the English boy, who has spent so many years of his boyhood in the Tyrol with Austrian friends who are as close to him as his own family. Austria, as depicted by the author, appears only in glimpses. They are adequate glimpses, but they are not profound or convincing. Like his favourite character, Mr. Roberts remains English, and in the crucial moment of Austria's difficulty with Serbia one feels that he, with Mrs. Crawley, regards Austrians, to whom at times he drew very near, as "foreigners" after all.

Although there is plenty of detail and no lack of action in the book, the reality of the various characters somehow escapes. The most convincing, perhaps, are the Count and the Countess. Paula, one of their children, is seduced by Ian, her English friend, during a mountain expedition, and after the war she abandons all pretence of virtue, but there is no psychological history that would make her adventures inevitable. There is only a chronicling of events and a summary of the philosophy of the demi-mondaine by her brother Hugo.

The author frequently uses German phrases to give colour to his atmosphere. Here grammatical mistakes, such as "Meine lieber Jane" at the beginning of a love letter, detract from reality.

HORACE WALPOLE.

The Life of Horace Walpole. By Stephen Gwynn. London: Thornton Butterworth. 15/- net.

THE production of a new life of Horace Walpole indicates a well-founded belief in the picturesque English eighteenth century. Walpole is, of course, among its most attractive figures, whether he be regarded as the creator of Strawberry Hill, or the displayer of its social life. Mr. Stephen Gwynn's picture of both brings out aspects that are freshly presented, in spite of their abundant literature. Scandals, loves and hates, depicted with intriguing reticence, colour his canvas of beautiful women, brilliant orators, grand tours, and the voluminous correspondence of those days. He does not pretend to the detail of earlier elaborate tomes upon the life, times and writings of "the best letter-writer in the English language," who, when praised for the art of his epistles, said, though not devoil of vanity: "I shall be quite content with a sprig of rosemary thrown after me when the parson of the parish commits my dust to dust." Yet Mr. Gwynn's work does as much as one volume can to indicate posterity's debt to this chronicler of the doings of such diverse persons as Thomas Gray, Thomas Ashton, Richrd West, "Garrick, a wine merchant, who is turned player"; Peg Woffington—"a bad actress, but she has life"—Mrs. Siddons, Lord Chatham, Charles Townsend, and "Mr. Fox, a prodigy," to mention a few at random. "It was a strong-stomached generation" in its tastes and eccentricities.

The lengthy transforming of the cottage at Strawberry Hill—in accordance with Walpole's fondness for "the Sharawaggi or Chinese want of symmetry in buildings, as in grounds or gardens"—into a Gothic Castle has made him a little absurd, notwithstanding the distinguished first editions which issued from the printing press called "Officina Arbuteana," which he established there. There, however, beside "that most characteristically English of all England's beauty spots—the stretch of silver Thames from Richmond to Hampton Court"—he lived with occasional visits abroad, upon one of which, in 1765, he met Madame Defland, old and blind, with whom he corresponded till her death in 1780.

There can be no doubt of the novel, if eccentric, influences upon Walpole's correspondence which flowed partly from his early two years' grand tour of the Continent with Gray, the poet, and from his literary and partly from social activities in Strawberry Hill, crowded as they were with notable persons and curiosities which the public paid to see. His succession near the end of his life to his family earldom added no distinction to this outstanding personality, whose descriptions and criticisms of his own times provide such interesting reading to-day.

Mr. Gwynn's scholarly and attractive style is worthy of the person and the period.
